—Mr. W. H. Manning, who was killed in the New York Central disaster at Cana-hoirre, N. Y., was a nephew of Mrs. S.
Wells Holmes, and had a number of other relatives in Newton, to whom his untimely death was a severe blow. He was on his bridal trip, and his wife did not die, as reported, but has been taken to a hospital, and there is a chance of her recovery. The funeral of Mr. Manning was held at his mother's residence in Cambridge, Wednesday afternoon. A number of the ushers

New York with a very choice assortment of patterns, hats and bonnets of the latest design, and of millinery novelties, selected from the leading importers, and they will

Newton always find these openings very features this year, which will make a visit very enjoyable.

house in Trowbridge court to Albert Tead
of this city; the end store in Howes' block to Charles Ching of this city; the end house in the block on Galen street near Morse street, Watertown, to Mr. Benyon of Boston, the "Atwood House," Cabot street, Newtonville, belonging to H. F. Ross, to Mrs. Nat Weeks of Providence, R. I.

—A woolly Western man in Boston writes to the Chicago Herald about the Boston papers: "They print five columns of lawn tennis stuff, three columns of base ball, two columns of general sporting slush, and then fill the rest of the paper with editorial paragraphs from surrounding towns like Salem, Weymouth, Newton, Newton Centre, West Newton, North Newton, East Newton, South Newton and Newton. Oh, did I say? Newton before. Excuse me, but these places confound one's eyes. A good rule is to take a suburban town and box the compass with it. Then you are sure."

—Mr. Wellington Howes has secured the services of W. J. Johnson, a veteran fishman of Boston, to take charge of that department of his business, and as the business has been the business of the firm
Howes, patrons can depend on being well served and securing just what they want.
The prices will continue to be low, for the quality of goods, which will always be of the best. Mr. Warren Jaquith, who was formerly in charge, is still very ill, and unable to attend to business.

—The Ludwig concert company gave a concert Monday evening in Eliot Hall. The program consisted of vocal solos, contraltos, and of bass solos, renditions of Irish national airs by a quartet and instrumental numbers by the famous "Kerry Piper." Mr.
Ludwig's numbers were finely rendered, his fine baritone voice being at its best in the grand ballads, full of the rich melody which characterizes Irish music. Mme. Mullen and Miss Layton gave fine solo renditions, and the vocalists in combination rendered fine numbers blended harmoniously and effectively. Owing to the unpleasant weather, the attendance was quite small, but those present enjoyed a charming musical evening.

—The free delivery system has now been in operation a year in Newton, and is giving great satisfaction, as the five carriers do their work very faithfully, and the office of the manager, who is in charge, is in the delivering letters, and whatever the mistake in address, letters seldom fail to reach the right person. Each carrier has handled an average of 175,000 pieces of mail matter during the year, and a total of 875,000 have been delivered. Dr. D. K. Hitchcock deserves the credit for the first agitation for a free delivery system in Newton, and made application for it four or five years ago, and has never ceased in his efforts to secure it. Agitation was again actively taken up under Postmaster Morgan, and through the assistance of Congressman
Burton it was carried through successfully.
Probably no one would now vote for a return to the old system.

—The funeral of Mr. Charles F. Rand took place from the chapel of Eliot church, Saturday afternoon. There was a large attendance, including representatives of the church council, R. A. of which deceased was a member, the relatives, former business associates and numerous friends.
Rev. Wolcott Calkins, D. D., pastor of Eliot church, officiated and appropriate selections were rendered by the Eliot church quartet, comprising Miss Cleveland, soprano; Mrs. Lewis, alto; Mr. Bacon, tenor; Mr. Farley, bass. The floral tributes were very beautiful and included an open book from Mr. Edward Rand, Jamaica Plain, and other designs from the family and friends. Among those present at the service were ex-Mayors J. F. C. Hyde, Alden Speare and William P. Ellison, Mr.
J. N

CITY GOVERNMENT.

WM. C. BATES ELECTED COUNCILMAN FROM WARD SEVEN.

The Board of Aldermen met Monday evening, Alderman Pettee in the chair. Other members present were Aldermen Harbach, Childs, Chadwick, Johnson, and Tolman.

Returns from the special election in Ward Seven showed that 14 votes were cast, of which Wm. C. Bates received 11; R. B. Edes, 1; Geo. W. Lamson, 1; Moses Clark, Jr., 1.

The list of election officers appointed at the last meeting was read and confirmed.

The report of the chief of the fire department recommending a license to L. S. Ross, to run a telephone wire from H. F. Ross' house to that of E. W. Redpath was made and the license granted.

A communication from the school board giving the estimate of expenses for the coming year as $121,700 was referred to the finance committee.

The report of the board of health in reference to the drainage of Knowles, Station, and Ripley streets, and the assessments for the same, was read and accepted.

The petition of John Jones and six others for fire alarm box on California street, near Crescent and Faxon, was referred to the finance committee.

The bonds of the Newton street railway company, for $15,000 for the proper building of their road bed, and for $10,000 for protecting the city from damage by the use of the electric motor system were read and accepted, as they were approved by the city solicitor.

The street railway company also accepted the changes made in regard to laying of tracks, and other modifications, in the order passed at the last meeting.

The license committee granted W. F. Hammett leave to draw, and his petition to have one of the telephone poles in front of his house removed.

THE CLAFIN SCHOOL HOUSE.

Alderman Tolman reported from the finance committee, in regard to the increase to $24,500 asked in the appropriation for the new six room brick school house at Newtonville, and recommended that the amount be made $23,500, and the first note be made $1,000 less than was contemplated.

Alderman Johnson rather pointedly asked the chairman of the public property committee, if this sum would be sufficient to finish the school, or if they were going to ask for more later.

Alderman Chadwick replied that he saw no reason why the amount would not be sufficient.

W. C. Strong gave notice of intention to build two houses on Chestnut street, Ward 5.

D. S. Farnham gave notice of intention to build house 21 by 40 on Centre street, Ward 6.

A petition for a crosswalk on the corner of Severus and Locust streets was referred to the street committee.

Franklin and Fred A. Metcalf asked for a street lamp on the east side of Webster Park, and Samuel M. Jackson and others for two lamps on Jackson street.

The three engineers and eight drivers of the fire department petitioned for one day of 24 hours once in two weeks, without loss of pay, as is the practice in other cities. Referred to fire department.

STREET RAILWAY HEARING.

Alderman Harbach read an order granting the Newton Street Railway company the right to use the West End tracks on Centre street, Newton, and also to use overhead wires for their electric motor, and hearing was granted on the order for Oct. 21, at 7:45 p.m., a copy of the order to be sent to the West End company, and to be published in the Newton Graphic.

The water board was authorized to lay 730 feet of pipe on Pearl street, without the usual guarantee, at a cost not to exceed $883, the same to be charged to the water construction account.

On motion of Alderman Harbach it was voted that when the board adjourned it be to meet Oct. 8 at 7:15 p.m. A recess was then taken.

Upon resuming the motion of Alderman Tolman, order 11,270, appropriating $21,500 for the construction of a six-room brick school house was rescinded and a substitute order adopted, authorizing the committee on highways to contract for the construction of a cellar at an expense of $2,700 and a six-room brick school house on the Clafin school grounds, at an expense not to exceed $31,000, issuing notes in payment thereof as follows: $5,000 in 2 years; $6,000 in 3 years; $6,000 in 4 years; $6,000 in 5 years; $10,500 in 6 years; the whole amount aggregating $35,500.

On motion of Alderman Johnson the committee on fuel and street lights was authorized to place street lamps in the following places: Beacon Place, 1; Ward street, 2; Carlisle Place, 1; Lenox street, 1; Freeman street, 1; incandescent; the expense of the same to be charged to the appropriation for fuel and street lights.

Alderman Chadwick offered the following resolution:

Resolved, that in the opinion of the board better security for the public demands the placing of an additional flagman on the North side of the Walnut street crossing, and hearing was granted on the order for Oct. 21, at 7:45 p.m., a copy of the order to be sent to the West End company, and to be published in the Newton Graphic.

W. C. T. U.

On Saturday afternoon, the first meeting of the season was held by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Auxiliary. The President, Miss Elizabeth P. Gordon, in opening the meeting, mentioned that the day was Miss Frances Willard's fiftieth birthday, and used one of her Bible readings as being appropriate.

A report of the work of the flower mission was called for, after the devotional exercises, and the reading of the minutes of the last meeting. During the summer flowers have been sent to a room kindly offered for the work, on Saturday mornings, and made up into bouquets, which, with written Scripture verses carefully selected, have been sent to hospitals or prisons. Over 200 have been sent, during the summer, to the Cottage Hospital, and over 1700 to the Women's Reformatory Prison in Sherborn. At the latter place the women are required by the superintendent to learn every text, and in spite of this, they certainly appear to be pleased with, and grateful for, both flowers and verses.

A member of the Union was asked to give an account of a visit just made to this prison where the flowers had been sent, and told how a party of twelve ladies were invited by the superintendent at Sherborn, had been met by covered wagons, sometimes called by an unpleasant name, taken to the large, fine building, which the assistant superintendent kindly showed and explained to them. After visiting cells, school room, dining and work rooms, laundry, dairy, kitchen and chapel, they returned to the pleasant building, joined by a corridor to the main building, which is the residence of the superintendent. Here they were hospitably entertained, and enjoyed greatly the conversation of their hosts, as she spoke of the work with its trials and encouragements.

Later they went to the chapel, and saw the 240 women gather, coming in by the lines in the gingham dress, and the color of the little shawl over her shoulders. All wore spotless white aprons, and most had a hopeful, cheerful look, unlike the faces in our prisons generally.

The chaplain, a lady, for this institution is entirely under the management of women, conducted the usual daily evening devotional service; this was followed by the reading of an appropriate poem, and singing, by some of the lady visitors. As the singer sang of Him, "Who died that we might be forgiven, He died to make us good," it was interesting to watch the expression of the upturned faces. There were many who looked as if, feeling their sins, they desired this pardon, and not a few eyes were filled with tears.

The visitors took with them the 240 bouquets and verses they had prepared for the women, and went to the superintendent's request, two to each of the three doors of the chapel. As the women went out, each one was given a bouquet and Bible verse, but not until she had repeated one of the verses she had learned. Every woman it was thought repeated a verse, with the exception of six; and one of these had been excused from doing so by the superintendent on account of an impediment in her speech, and two because they could speak English so very little.

It was decided by all that they were rewarded for their trouble by knowing that these verses had been committed to memory, and they could but hope that some of these words of God might have been "aid in the heart."

After the transaction of some business, the meeting was adjourned till October.

THE IMPROVED SYSTEM OF PROPELLING STREET CARS.

A new system for developing and utilizing steam for power, without smoke, cinders, noise or escape of steam, at much less cost than by any other known method for obtaining and maintaining power. There is no failure nor uncertainty in its operation, and it is absolutely safe. For street cars and other service requiring portable power, it has no equal. Secured by U. S. letters patent. A prominent mechanical engineer says that the possibilities of this invention have not been equalled by any recent invention—except possibly the self Telephone and Sawyer-Mann for electric lighting. The Steam Storage Power Company has been organized for the development and introduction of this system throughout the New England States—which territory is owned exclusively by it—with a capital of $300,000—par value shares, $10—and is having a Power Car built by the Fulman Palace Car Co., which will be exhibited in Boston and vicinity in September. The first issue of certificates will be from the office of the company, 34 Broad street, after August 1. NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB

A TARIFF IS A TAX.

Address all communications to the Secretary of the Newton Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

Our Annual Meeting.

Our first annual meeting will be held on Monday evening, October 7, 1889, at 7-12 o'clock in Nickerson's Hall, West Newton. At this meeting the Executive Committee for the coming year must be elected. Other important matters connected with the work of the Club will come up for consideration, on all of which it is desirable to have the fullest and freest discussion. Let us be prompt to show our interest now, at this moment when thousands of intelligent men throughout the state are sitting astride the Tariff Fence and doubting whether to jump down on the side of Liberty or the side of Restriction. Let every one do his duty to his country and to his opinions. Come!

A Glance at the Convention.

BY BASTIAT.

Ex-Gov. Robinson.—The Republican Party is pledged to a revision of the Tariff. It should make every honest effort to accomplish it.

Gov. Ames.—Hear! Hear!

Ex-Gov. Robinson.—But it will stand by the protective principle to the end, and save to the country, as it has in the past, that industrial system which has made America the wonder of the world.

Woolen Manufacturers.—Hurrah!

Ex-Gov. Robinson.—"Tariff Reform," reads well and sounds well.

Hon. Peleg M. Farlin.—Good!

Ex-Gov. Robinson.—But what is really meant by it? We all favor it, if it signifies such changes in law and administration as shall correct inequalities, diminish the receipts of revenue, and make the whole system fairer and better without destroying or assaulting the American policy of protection. (General Applause.) But if it means Free Trade and the adoption of a policy that England determines is best for America, then we want nothing to do with it, but fight it to the end. Its advocates may wear disguises, but the wolf in sheep's clothing will have no welcome to our frescoes.

Woolen Manufacturers.—Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!

Ames, M. Farlin, et id omne genus.—Shame! Shame!

Ex-Gov. Robinson.—The consideration of local, selfish advantages may lead some to disregard the broad policy which contemplates the welfare of every part of the country. (Tumult of applause, amid which few feeble hisses are heard from Ames, etc.)

Henry Cabot Lodge, for the Committee on Resolutions.—To our Senators and Representatives in Congress we would say that the Republicans of Massachusetts look to them to urge and support a thorough and radical revision of the tariff so as to adapt the protection which it affords to changed business conditions affecting New England in common with those of the rest of the country.

Gov. Ames and others.—Hurrah for free raw materials. Hurrah for conditions away with theories.

Henry Cabot Lodge.—To maintain the American System of protection to American industry and American labor.

Senator Hoar and Representative Chandler.—Hurrah for the American System! We will maintain it forever and a day.

(Three cheers are given for tariff reform, three cheers for free raw materials, three cheers for taxed wool and iron ore, and a grand "tiger" for harmony and consistency.)

The American System.

A GIPSY STORY.

"Savo's tute rye?" putched a ryan much of a Romany chel. "I've du ryan," poked the Romany chel: "Duvel's the yek an' beng's the waver. Mandy kairs booti for the beng till I've lelled my yekora habben, an' palleri mi Duvel panli ajaw."

THE SAME (DONE INTO ENGLISH).

"Who is your master," asked a gentleman's servant of a Gipsy. "I've two masters," said the Gipsy: "God is the one, and the devil the other. I work for the devil till I have got my dinner, and after that I follow the Lord."

THE SAME (DONE INTO AMERICAN).

"Who is your master," asked a Question Club of a Governor. "I've two masters," said the Governor. "Protection is the one and Free Trade is the other. I work for Free Trade till I've got my dividend, and after that I follow Protection."

Selfishness Betrays Itself.

Selfishness betrays itself. That utter selfishness is the foundation of our present tariff is shown by the words and acts of its professed friends and advocates. As soon as the tariff begins directly to affect any one of them injuriously, he is quick to cry out against it and favor shipping the burden upon some one else.

If the present kind and degree of protection is correct in principle and for the good of the country, it should be consistently sustained by its present supporters, without regard to its effects upon their individual private interests.

To be consistent, the wool growers association, if really believing in extreme protection and actuated by other motives than those of personal gain, should favor the present rate of protection upon manufactures of wool, regardless of the tariff on wool, rather than threaten the manufacturers with a loss of their protection if wool is made free. If a high tariff on manufactures of wool is for the benefit of the country, it becomes no less a benefit if the tariff on wool is removed. Indeed, logically, the benefit should be greater as the rate of protection would be greater.

The threat of the association at its recent meeting shows conclusively that selfishness is the motive actuating it.

So long as protection appeared to favor the iron industries of New England at the cost of other parts of the country, the great majority of iron manufacturers here favored the present high tariff on crude iron. Now that the tariff on iron and coal is operating to New England's disadvantage, the manufacturers without regard to party, or to opinions recently expressed by them, cry out in self-protection against it. They don't like a tariff tax when it oppresses them and enriches some one else.

The Boston merchant before the Senate committee, advocating free traffic with Canada and free crude iron and coal, and at the same time expressing himself as a believer in protection, offers a strange spectacle of consistency.

The very idea at the base of protection is to restrict commerce with other nations.

The only possible reason for the Boston merchant's advocating free traffic with Canada is that he sees it will benefit Boston's trade and increase her prosperity, while free crude iron and coal will benefit the industries of New England which the present tariff is choking.

If the present degree of protection is for the good of the whole country, New England should, if necessary, be offered upon the altar, and her merchants and manufacturers should be dumb at the sacrifice.

When self preservation compels the Governor of our State and leading merchants and manufacturers to take positions entirely inconsistent with each other, it is time for people to think for themselves and ascertain which is the true position—the one which necessity compels the merchants and manufacturers to take or the inconsistent with which it is at the same time professed. If free crude iron and coal are good things, so are other free raw materials and our present tariff should be modified in that direction.

Our Next Representatives.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.

In your last number you called attention to who might be called to serve our city in the next General Court.

By an unwritten custom it has been usual to select competent gentlemen from the various wards in some order of rotation.

In the regular course the choice of one of the two persons to be voted for would come from Ward Four, this year and if it is the desire of her citizens to put forward Mr. Fiske, probably no better selection for the ward or city could be made.

There has been precedent, however, for a third term for some of our representatives.

Mr. Slocum's predecessor, E. W. Wood, Esq., of Ward Three, was given a third term, and to a good many of our citizens it would seem, if Mr. Slocum could be returned once more, it would probably be highly beneficial for our city and state.

Mr. Slocum's position in the last house was unquestionably among the few leaders. When he took an active part in the debate he always held the attention of the house, because the members had come to feel that he spoke from preparation and his apparent convictions.

If Ward Four should feel inclined to nominate Mr. Slocum for a selection and hold Mr. Fiske over for nomination to next year, we think the interests of the city would be promoted, and the motto: "Bear ye one another's burdens." It has branches all over England, and a rapidly increasing membership on the Continent and in America, and thus are able to secure to girls leaving their homes friendly care and interest in the new country, or town, to which they may go.

The Newton Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society of America held its first meeting on January 20th, 1885, starting with a membership of 11, which has steadily increased until the roll now shows 89 belonging to the Branch.

Since its formation the Branch has given over $500.00 to various objects, including boxes of clothing and money to the Indian Missions and Schools in the West, and the Freedmen of the South, also to the Church in Haiti.

They have provided a Christian home and education for a native girl in China.

Their name appears on the Missionary Enrollment Fund, and they were also glad to assist in releasing our church from debt.

Miss Williston's Home and the Newton Cottage Hospital have been helped by contributions of clothing.

Services in Nonantum during the Lenten season were held for two years under the auspices of this Society.

A Sick Fund has been started by the members, from which to draw in aiding those among them who may be ill and unable to bear such expenses.

A small library is also placed at the service of its members.

Meetings are held in the Parish House of Grace church on every Thursday evening throughout the year.

Classes are formed during the winter for instruction. Practical talks on hygiene, the care of the sick, cooking, calisthenics, etc., are frequently delivered before the Society, as well as lectures on travels and other interesting topics.

A business meeting is called every three months, at which time the report admits any eligible candidates by an impressive service in the chapel, and during Lent he closes the weekly meetings with a short religious instruction.

To sum up: The "Girls' Friendly Society" tries to show that no one is too young or poor to do good, and that for all there is a home in the church.

A Hint to Ambitious Young Men.

(From the New Bedford Standard.)

If there are among us any young men who aspire to be Governor of Massachusetts 15 or 20 years hence, they may know what course it is best for them to pursue. They must get elected to the Legislature for several terms, and make a reputation there which will place them in a favorable position for the lieutenant-governorship, from which place they may entertain a fair hope for the governorship. It would be a great advantage to the commonwealth if there were a good many young men of high character and ability who would act from this point of view. For, though they could not all be lieutenant-governors and Governors, they would help elevate considerably the standing of the legislative body; a boost of which it is pretty generally conceded that it stands much in need.

Boston Museum.

At the Museum, "Hands Across the Sea" is doing a much greater business than either "Harbor Lights" or "The Bells of Haslemere" did, and fully equals the business done by "Little Lord Fauntleroy." No limit seems to be fixed to its run, the house being invariably crowded and the advance sale of seats phenomenal. It is capably acted and beautifully staged.—Boston Herald, Sept. 24.

Card of Thanks.

If the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam should publish a card of thanks, containing expressions of gratitude which come to me daily from those who have been cured of severe throat and lung troubles by the use of Kemp's Balsam, it would fill a fair-sized bottle to such a degree that I will call on any druggist and get a free sample bottle that you may test for yourself its power. Large bottles 50c and $1.00.

THE KILLING OF GEN. JORDAN.

A Violent Man, and the Sudden Death That Overtook Him at Last.

A dramatic sequence of events lay behind the recent assassination of Gen. Lopez Jordan in the streets of Buenos Ayres. Jordan was a violent, venturesome, unscrupulous man, who had experienced all the ups and downs of an adventurer's career. He was born in Concepcion, Uruguay, in 1823. He was educated in the Jesuit college, in Buenos Ayres, and in 1841 entered the Argentine army as a lieutenant. In the revolutionary times of 1849 he was commander of his native town. He was unpopular, even among his own people. He was quarrelsome, imperious and insolent, and always ready to meet any resentment which his conduct excited with a challenge to a duel. In the disturbances of 1851 he took sides with the tyrant Rosas against the rebellious Gen. Ugurila.

Under the protection of his chief he committed all sorts of misdeeds. His most atrocious crime was the murder of Maj. Casas. In the shadow of this crime he passed the last years of his life, and in consequence of it he met a violent death. Casas was the prefect of the city of Palmas, in the province of Entre Rios. He was a landed proprietor and a cattle man of great wealth. In 1873 he made a trip through the province for the purpose of selling 1,000 sheep and a large strip of woodland. In returning home with the proceeds of the sales in his pockets he passed through the region held by Jordan's troops. Jordan heard of his presence, and ordered that he should be arrested. It was done. Jordan received Casas in his tent, questioned him as to his possessions, and then, without a word of accusation, complaint or explanation, commanded that he should be executed. Casas was tied to a tree and slaughtered like a sheep. Jordan seized all the money found on the dead man's body, and afterward stripped his victim's family of all their property.

Justice is pretty readily footed in the Argentine Republic, especially when she is after generals; nevertheless, she began to overhaul Jordan almost immediately after the despoliation of the Casas. One by one his crimes were turned against him until in 1878 he was imprisoned in Parana on the charge of murdering Casas and Gen. Urquiza. By bribing the guards he made his escape from jail and left Parana in the disguise of a beggar on the arm of his daughter. He concealed himself over the border for ten years. After the amnesty of 1888 he returned to Buenos Ayres.

In the meantime the young son of Maj. Casas had become a man. He had seen many black days since the despoliation of his family. His mother had died of a broken heart, in extreme poverty. On her deathbed she made him swear to avenge his father's murder. A keen struggle with the world to obtain food and clothes for his sister and himself kept this oath fresh in young Casas' memory. He knew that Jordan would come back to Buenos Ayres some day, and he watched carefully for news of his return. A few weeks ago news of Jordan's reappearance came to Montevideo, where young Casas, as a reporter, was making a fair living for his sister and himself. Casas went at once to Buenos Ayres.

One Saturday noon Gen. Lopez Jordan stepped from his house into the most crowded street of Buenos Ayres for his midday stroll. Some hundred steps from his door a young man sprang before him and asked:

"Are you Gen. Lopez Jordan?"

"Yes."

"I am Aurelio Casas, son of Maj. Casas, whom you murdered sixteen years ago. I am come to shoot you." Gen. Jordan stood quite still and spoke a few words of apology. Aurelio Casas did not heed them. He motioned back the gathering crowd, drew a revolver and shot Gen. Jordan in the throat. Gen. Jordan did not move. Casas fired a second shot. It passed into Gen. Jordan's heart, and he fell dead to the ground.

Some one shouted "Murder!" The crowd, who remained beside his victim's body, "I have merely killed the man who killed my father." Then he threw down his revolver and walked away. Subsequently he surrendered himself to the police. The body of Gen. Lopez Jordan was carried to his palace, which had been built and furnished with the proceeds of the crime just avenged.—New York Sun.

Do Not Believe in a Future Life. When a gypsy dies that is the end. Every member of the race has a horror of death, because no gypsy lives who has faith in a hereafter. They cannot be induced to contemplate it. No genuine gypsy ever accepted Christianity. Borrow in his many years of Bible and missionary work among them never claimed to have converted one. In all countries, as is true of a goodly number of other folk, they occasionally profess a sort of attachment to the ruling creed. For instance, we hear of a "gypsy exhorter" in Ohio, and the other day a good bishop of Delaware was allowed to christen a gypsy child in a camp near Wilmington. But these little hypocries are all in the way of gypsy thrift.—Springfield Republican.

Bees and Gold. Clinton A. Snowden, of Tacoma, saw bees going and coming from a hollow tree. He built a fire, smoked out the bees and cut down the tree to get the honey. He found a great lot of it; but, better still, a large quantity of gold was in the hollow trunk. It had evidently been deposited there by nature, and the wise men out there think that it was "gradually washed up every year by the flow of sap, and in course of time accumulated into a solid mass." Mr. Snowden got over $7,000 for the gold.—New York Sun.

The Indian Problem Not Yet Solved.

While we congratulate the people of the whole northwest, and especially the citizens of Dakota, on the consummation of their long desire, the opening of the reservation by no means puts an end to the Indian problem as far as the Sioux are concerned. On the contrary, it is scarcely more than the beginning. Only a part of the reserve is acquired by the government; and the same questions will doubtless arise in future, as to that part, which have proved so vexatious in relation to the whole. No settlement can ever be regarded as final which stops short of the absolute allotment of lands in severalty and the adding of all that remains to the public domain. Again, it seems as if the government were merely abandoning one posture of the "guardian and ward" attitude in order to assume another. The reservation system, with its issue of rations and consequent tendencies toward idleness and vice, has scarcely a friend remaining. Yet we have only the same thing in another form in the practice of accumulating immense cash funds for the benefit of the Indian, to be held in trust by the nation, while interest is paid regularly to the beneficiary. The purchase of these lands by the nation means a permanent investment in trust for the Indian. And it is not according to nature that a quarterly payment to him of so many dollars in cash as interest will be any less demoralizing than the issue of so many blankets and so many pounds of flour, beef and pork.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Badly Used Up by Bees. Mr. George Murray, a teacher at the Colliery board schools, Dipton, with the assistance of one or two other gentlemen, was preparing to carry some half dozen hives of bees from the Colliery farm to the fells at Waskerley. During the process of packing them in a cart the bottom fell off one of the hives, and, as a natural consequence, the bees came buzzing out and stung Mr. Murray and his companions, as well as stinging the horse attached to the cart. The animal bolted away in fright. Hundreds of bees found their way out of the remainder of the hives, and not only stung the occupants of the cart and the horse in a dreadful manner, but the insects also fastened themselves upon a number of school children who were having a ride through the village on a hay cart. Mr. Murray and his companion (Mr. Elliott) were left lying on the ground in an exhausted and almost unconscious state, and the horse was so badly injured by the insects' stings that it fell down upon the road and succumbed the same night. Mr. Murray was also confined to his bed for some time, but on Saturday he was reported to be much better. The rest appear to be very little worse.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Cotton Worms. That one drug house in Vicksburg should receive orders for fifteen tons, or 30,000 pounds, of paris green in one day demonstrates the extent of the apprehension felt by cotton planters concerning the cotton worms in the large area of country tributary to or trading with that city. With the cotton worms apparently so formidable in their second generation, the third generation, which forms a vast increase over its progenitors, may do very serious damage. It is extremely unfortunate, if it be true, that the available supply of paris green has been already exhausted. It is likely that far more than the amount already used will be needed. Where these pests are unchecked by poison, in their third generation, they have been known to ravage cotton fields and leave the stalks as bare of foliage in the latter part of August and September as they are in early February before being pulled up and burned, preparatory to the planting of a new crop.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Military Islamism. There is about modern Mohammedanism, at least of the military type, nothing of the uncertainty and shillyshally with which modern Christianity is sometimes reproached. The prophet understood the natural man of Asiatic and African races perfectly well, and his mode of procedure is still fully justified with them. He did not, like some unwelcome fanatics, promise universal victory, invulnerableness, or anything of the kind. The followers of the Khalifa are quite aware that they may be collectively defeated and individually killed. But that does not interfere either with their certainty of the ultimate success of their cause, with their sense of the duty of offering conversion, tribute or the sword, or with their enjoyment of the comfortable prospects of the martyred believer.—Saturday Review.

Jersey Mosquitoes Astray in Japan. An extraordinary statement was made the other day by a man from Miyagaki. He stated that in Sendai, since the 11th and 12th ult., the people have been much troubled with a kind of poisonous butterfly. To touch one of them causes the flesh to itch, and if se attached to swell and remain swollen for a very long time. In daylight, he says, they do not make their appearance, but at twilight they swarm into the houses. With the approval of the authorities fires are now burned at the entrances of houses and yards to attract the insects and destroy them.—Mainichi Shimbun.

The American rage for baseball is after all weak compared to the British craze for cricket. At the last match between the two greatest of the county elevens, Surrey and Nottingham, which took three days to play, nearly 60,000 people went to see it and Surrey's victory. The batting of Lockwood and Abel, who together made 159 in Surrey's second inning, was so important toward winning the match that the collection taken up for their benefit amounted to £42, £5 of which was in penny pieces.

Of the 35,000 tons of wire fencing annually imported into the Argentine Republic it is said that Belgium furnishes half, Great Britain about a quarter and France somewhat less.

NEGRO BOYS ATTACKED BY BEARS.

One Killed and One Taken to the Bears' Den, Where He Was Found.

Along the south bank of the Warrior river, in Tuscaloosa county, there is a tract of land, some 8,000 acres in extent, which is a strange combination of swamp, hillock and dense forest. There are little patches of forest where the foliage of the oak and poplar trees shut out the sunlight at noonday; then there is a cluster of little hillocks, some of them more than thirty feet high, and then comes a stretch of swamp, so dense and so dismal that only the most daring hunters will penetrate it. This locality is the hunters' paradise. In the notches of forest there are thousands of squirrels, turkeys, coons, rabbits and a few deer. In the swamp, bear, mink and other animals are found. The swamp is covered with a dense growth of canebrake, and in this black bears are found in large numbers. They prey on the young stock of the farmers around the swamp.

Just below this swamp there are several large plantations cultivated entirely by negro labor. Living in little cabins, many of them very close to the swamps or forest, there are probably 200 families of negroes. The little children of these negroes have no fear of the dark canebrake swamps or the dense forest; as a result they often get lost. Several times children have been lost in the swamp for a day and night at a time.

One day last week the two boys of Perry Taylor, colored, aged 4 and 6, left home early one morning and wandered off into the forest. They were not missed until noon, and then their parents felt no uneasiness about them. Night came on and still the two boys had not returned. Taylor and his wife were alarmed, but they could do nothing until morning. Next day they organized a searching party and penetrated the swamp and forest. There were some fifty people in the searching party, and they covered several miles of the swamp and forest without finding any trace of the missing children. The second day the search was continued, and probably 200 negroes joined the searching party.

At about noon of the third day five negroes, who had penetrated a mile further into the canebrake than the main searching party, found the dead body of the oldest boy. He had evidently been killed by a bear, and his flesh and clothing were badly torn. The main searching party came up and began to search for the youngest boy. A few hundred yards from the spot where the body of the oldest boy was found the party ran into a bear's den. There were one male and two female bears and five cubs. The old bears showed fight and were shot dead, several of the negroes being armed. At the sound of the shooting the five cubs had huddled close together under the upturned roots of a fallen tree. They were dragged out, and there, half smothered by the young bears, was the 4-year-old negro boy. There was not a scratch on the boy's body, but he was almost starved and was very weak.

The child said they got lost in the woods and kept walking until they were tired, and then lay down and went to sleep. He was awakened by hearing his brother scream, and, looking up, saw him in the clutches of a bear. The little fellow was too badly frightened to run or make an outcry. He lay still and saw his brother torn to pieces. Then the bear turned to him. He screamed and closed his eyes, expecting to be killed. The bear put its nose in his face, and, after smelling him a while, caught his clothing in its teeth and started away with him. The bear carried him to the den and dropped him among the young cubs, where he remained until found by the searching party. Neither the old or young bears made any effort to hurt the child.—Birmingham (Ala.) Letter.

Bigger Than a Fish Hawk.

Mahlon D. Turk, of Oley, six miles from this city, is the owner of five large fish dams. Of late he has been greatly troubled by the depredations of fish hawks, which have made frequent descents upon his fish preserves, where various sizes, 3,000 or 4,000 German carp of various sizes. The other day, intending to abate the nuisance somewhat if possible, he took down his shotgun, and with a supply of buckshot secreted himself in the bushes beside one of the dams. Presently an enormous bird soared overhead, and after circling around slowly three times made a rapid descent into the pond. Just as it emerged from the water with a fish in its talons Mr. Turk let drive at it with a load of buckshot and killed it instantly. Instead of being a fish hawk, as he supposed, it proved to be a bald eagle, and measured 5 feet 6 inches from tip to tip of its wings.—Reading Cor. New York Sun.

A Snake Vindicated a Chicken.

A farmer in the upper portion of this county was aroused one night not long since by the squalling of a hen on her roost in a cluster of vines near the house. Going out, the hen was apparently transfixed with fright and helpless in her movements. A large snake was found near by with eyes evidently set upon his prey. The hen continued her squalls without moving, as if in a nightmare, till the snake was killed, when she fell from her perch, recovering and flying away, but has since been in a droop.—Dalton (Ga.) Argus.

A Bachelor Until He Was 103.

The grandfather of Mr. Walls, now living near Athens, never married till his 103d year. His wife was just 20. They lived happily together. "It was no unusual sight," says The Athens Chronicle, "to see the old man, at the age of 130, plowing in the field. But he was taken sick when in his 138th year and lived but a few months."—Atlanta Constitution.

A well of water on a farm near Harmonyville, Chester county, Pa., suddenly "drew out" while the farmer's wife was falling water a few days ago. Then the walls of the well abruptly collapsed. It is suspected that an underground lake or river drew away the water.

Constipation,

If not remedied in season, is liable to become habitual and chronic. Drastic purgatives, by weakening the bowels, confirm rather than cure, the evil. Ayer's Pills, being mild, effective, and strengthening in their action, are generally recommended by the faculty as the best of aperients.

"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills. I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowman, 23 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa.

"I have been taking Ayer's Pills and using them in my family since 1857, and cheerfully recommend them to all in need of a safe but effectual cathartic."—John M. Boggs, Louisville, Ky.

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so bad that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health."—S. L. Loughbridge, Bryan, Texas.

"Having used Ayer's Pills, with good results, I fully endorse them for the purposes for which they are recommended."—T. Conner, M. D., Centre Bridge, Pa.

WETHERALD-WINTER.

A VERY PRETTY WEDDING AT GRACE CHURCH.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place last evening in Grace Church in Newton, when Miss Eliza Winter, daughter of the late Royal P. Winter, and Mr. James T. Wetherald, formerly of Toronto, Ont., but now of Newton, were united in marriage, in the presence of a large and fashionable audience, which completely filled the church. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion by Florist Johnson, the decorations being mostly used in the chancel and the broad aisle. Palms and other tropical plants were artistically grouped to form a pathway and bower, through which the bridal procession passed on its way to the altar. The flowers were appropriately white in color, roses, callas, tuberoses, carnations and sweet alyssum being used in profusion. The seats reserved for members of the family were marked with knots of flowers and trailing vines. While the guests assembled, choice musical selections were rendered by Mr. F. H. Wood, organist of the church, and at 7.30 o'clock the bridal procession entered the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin." The bridegroom, Mr. James T. Wetherald, attended by his best man, Mr. Ubert Pettigill of Boston, entered from the side door and awaited at the chancel the coming of the bride. At the same time the bride's procession passed down the main aisle. The six ushers, Messrs. Charles A. Brown and Wm. A. Hall of Auburndale, Messrs. Morton E. Cobb and Frederick T. Barlett of Newton and Messrs. A. Hallett Page and Edmund W. Tryon of New York, preceded the bridesmaids, the Misses Mabel and Julia Phelps of New York and Miss Carrie White of Watertown, Ct., cousins of the bride. The bride followed, escorted by her uncle, Mr. Frank Phelps of Watertown, Ct., who also gave her in marriage. Meeting in the chancel, the bride and groom advanced to the altar and knelt, while the beautiful marriage service of the Episcopal Church was impressively read by Rev. Dr. Shinn.

The bride wore a rich and elegant costume of white satin made en traine, with front of duchesse lace, a full veil and diamond ornaments. She carried a large bouquet of Cornelia Cook roses. The bridesmaids wore pretty gowns of pink, blue and yellow tulle, made in empire fashion, and carried prayer-books bound in white velvet.

Following the ceremony at the church, a small reception was held at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Royal P. Winter, in Park street, at the close of which Mr. and Mrs. Wetherald departed on their wedding journey, which will be quite an extended trip. Mr. and Mrs. Wetherald will be at home on the 4th and 11th of December at their residence in Park street, Newton. Among the guests were noticed: Mrs. Samuel Demorest; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Phelps, Mrs. Charles H. Phelps, Miss Cornell, New York; Mr. and Mrs. George L. White, Watertown, Ct.; Miss Phelps, Messrs. Charles and Thomas Phelps, Mrs. H. A. Brooke, Mr. T. R. Brooke, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Cobb, the Misses Cobb, the Misses Page, Mrs. Charles E. Billings, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Thatcher, Mrs. Dewey, Mrs. Train, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Clark, Jr., Mrs. W. O. Trowbridge, Mrs. F. E. Cutting, Miss Cutting, Mrs. W. W. Brackett, Dr. Meade of Watertown, Miss Mary Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Springer.

Rev. Mr. Spaulding's Lectures.

Mr. Spaulding gives the first of his illustrated lectures in the Channing church parlors next Wednesday evening, Oct. 16, at 7.45 o'clock. The subject is "Christian Rome: St. Peter's Church."

In this lecture a full delineation is given of Christian Ecclesiastical art, from the Basilica of Ancient Rome to the highest triumphs of modern architecture, together with a complete history of St. Peter's, including the grand designs of Michelangelo. The illustrations represent Roman Temples and Basilicas, the beautiful Churches of St. Paul and St. Agnes, the old Constantinian Church of St. Peter, and the modern St. Peter's, with numerous views of the interior, the Dome, Michelangelo's Model, the interior, the Tombs, the Monuments, etc. These illustrations are given in dissolving views (many of them) by means of a powerful stereopticon. The lecture contains nothing of a sectarian or controversial character, but is a thorough and accurate description of the "World's Cathedral," changing the shadowy edifice of the hearer's imagination into the glorious reality.

The Late Chas. F. Rand.

At once upon announcement made to me by telegraph, of Mr. Rand's death there were recalled to my mind, by the process of involuntary memory, the words, long forgotten, perhaps now imperfectly rendered, which form the most pathetic part of the lamentation of Andromache—as given in Pope's Homer—when it was announced to her that her hero-husband, that the chieftain, Hector, was slain:

"My Father, Mother, Brethren, all in thee!"

"Tried as silver is tried," saith the Scripture, but there is a closer trial, a surer test than is herein implied; the trial afforded by a daily and intimate intercourse between man and man for more than thirteen unbroken years. And, tested by the standard of a true and noble life, the late Mr. Rand's life was a noble one, and he deserved the eulogy of Horace, (so often and frequently so thoughtlessly and flippantly quoted that the Latin has become almost as familiar as a stanza from Shakespeare) if to any one ever pertained, without charge of exaggeration, the immortal words: "Integer vir, scelerisque purus," surely by very right they belong to him, and may be applied, without hesitation or protest, to our beloved and departed friend.

Always "diligent in business," particularly when such business concerned another, with the high sense of honor and integrity which were a part of the man, and with his determination to make the most of time and opportunity in behalf of a client, the casual acquaintance—and all the more if it were an occasion of special pressure—might consider him rather brusque, perhaps lacking in cordiality. His real spirit and character needed to be interpreted in the hour of friendly intercourse, in the brief, seldom offered period of leisure and freedom from care. To his nearest friends, even, he did not hold the relation of him who "wears his heart upon his sleeve." But when a friend he was in the widest reach of the word, in all that is involved in friendly association, fidelity, devotion to trust! Still, so unobtrusive was he, it may well be that many of us who knew him longest and best and who loved him most, have yet to learn the integrity and scope of his individuality, and in his absence henceforth from our circles, as the circling years revolve, it may well be that we shall realize, more and more, that the place which he has left vacant no other friend shall arise to fill.

Many still remain in our city of larger wealth; some there are who may seem, for the day, to exert a wider influence; but that vacant place, who shall occupy it! That familiar face and form, what substitution can there be for such loss! Those departures, nevermore to return, could be more deeply, more widely felt! Who were to do the service, to receive the trusts which he has done and received!

Always faithful to his fellowmen, faithful to his Saviour and Lord; to our beloved friend has come at last the well-earned rest and reward—upon us has fallen the burden of bereavement, of an absence which is final, which gives no hope, or promise of return.

Newton Tariff Reform Club.

The annual meeting of the Newton Tariff Reform Club was held at Nickerson's hall, West Newton, Monday evening, and the addresses read will be found in the club's regular column on the 3rd page. It was voted to continue the column, and the editor of the column, Mr. C. Howard Wilson, secretary of the club received the unanimous commendation of the club for the admirable manner in which he has managed the column, and the great amount of work he has undertaken to keep it up to the high standard so far maintained. The new executive committee and the members generally were at the same time reminded that they ought to do something in the way of writing original articles for it.

It was voted to increase the executive committee to seven members, so that each ward would have a representative on it, and the following officers were elected:

Pres., E. B. Haskell; Vice Pres., Stephen Thacher; Secretary and Treasurer, C. Howard Wilson; Committee: Francis A. Dewson, H. C. Soule, Joseph R. Smith and W. S. Hutchinson.

The executive committee were recommended to consider the project of holding a monthly dinner at the Woodland Park Hotel, at a cost of not over $1 a plate, with special attractions in the way of speakers, and report.

Among the members present were the officers already named, H. E. Bothfield, Ernest Winsor, John Richardson, James P. Tolman, N. T. Allen, Arthur Carroll, E. W. Redpath, Dr. Levi Parker, R. L. Bridgman, P. C. Bridgman, Bruce R. Ware, Geo. H. Ellis, E. P. Bond, Lawrence Bond, Marcus Morton and Frank Clement.

The official account of the meeting will appear Oct. 18th.

The Speakership.

The Fitchburg Sentinel has thus early found its voice on the speakership question, and it is a disturbing one for William E. Barrett. It goes straight to the point, as follows:—

There ought to be no doubt in any part of the state that it will not do to re-elect Speaker Barrett to the chair a gain. He has been the one failure in recent times. The last Legislature has a bad reputation above any within the memory of men now active in politics, and Mr. Barrett is responsible for it far above any other man. He failed lamentably in preserving order. He is nothing of a parliamentarian. He does not command the respect of his associates. He was elected last year by votes of men who did not know him and he never could be elected again by those who served under him. But he is a candidate and says that the man who beats him will have to "hustle." As Barrett is himself a "hustler," there is no doubt that this is true. But it would be a misfortune to the state if he should be elected to the speakership again and those who are likely to serve in the House should prepare to defeat him. The contest will surely be sharp, but forewarned is forearmed, and there will be no doubt about the result if the members have the backbone and honesty to do what they know ought to be done.

Associated Charities.

A business meeting of the Associated Charities will be held at the house of the president on Beacon street, Newton Centre, Saturday afternoon, Oct. 13th, at half past three o'clock.

Newton's Oldest Church CELEBRATES ITS 225TH ANNIVERSARY.

Addresses Given at the First Church of Newton Centre.

AN INTERESTING EXHIBIT OF ANCIENT MEMORIALS.

A Full Account of the Exercises of Sunday and Monday.

The 225th anniversary of the organization of the First Church in Newton was observed with interesting services, Sunday, in the church at Newton Centre. There was a large attendance from all parts of the city, together with numerous visitors and former members of the church. The auditorium was appropriately decorated. A variety of potted plants and ferns were massed in front of the pulpit, while the projecting cornices and supporting columns on either side of the main aisle were twined with streamers of evergreen. In the great arch in the rear of the pulpit, a beautiful floral cross was placed, while on either side, above a draping of flags and bunting, appeared the figures: "1664-1889." Suspended from the arches along the side of the church were panels trimmed with evergreen, bearing the names of all the former pastors, with the dates of their birth, resignation or decease.

The services Sunday morning commenced at 10.30 o'clock, the choir rendering the "Te Deum." Rev. Alvah Hovey, D. D., president of the Newton Theological Institution, read from the Scriptures, and prayer was offered by Prof. E. A. Park, D. D., of Andover. The rendition of the hymn "Cambridge" by the congregation preceded the delivery of the historical address by Rev. Daniel L. Furber, D. D., pastor emeritus. Dr. Furber took his texts from Hebrews xiii, 7: "Remember them which have the rule over you," and from Proverbs xvii, 6: "Children's children are the crown of old men, and the glory of children are their fathers." In his opening remarks he said that it would be his purpose to speak of the doctrines that had been preached in the First Church during its more than two centuries of existence, alluding to the character and teachings of the preachers themselves. The doctrines preached in the old church, continued the speaker, were thoroughly Calvinistic. The people were, for the most part, cultivated, having been brought up under the shadow of the university in Cambridge, of which Newton was then a part. Through the succeeding years the Calvinistic doctrines were adhered to, and in the year 1780 it is said that the members of the church entered into a new covenant, pledging themselves to abide by the faith of their fathers. In the Unitarian controversy, therefore, this church stood firm in its original faith. The speaker next reviewed the theories and beliefs of the early ministers of the church.

CONCERNING ORIGINAL SIN, eternal punishment and the power of God to intercede for man. In giving the views of these early divines, he quoted from words of Rev. Nehemiah Hobart, the second pastor, relative to this last point. "I do not know that God intercedes for me," said Rev. Mr. Hobart, "but I know that he commands us to pray, and this is the best way for us to know that God intercedes for us." This pastor, continued Dr. Furber, believed that it was just as essential to be earnest in seeking salvation as in seeking public office.

The church today still holds to the confession of faith of 1680, for the substance of it, although we join hands and hearts with other bodies of Christians in spreading the gospel to all men. Calvinism, although it has been sneered at, was a mighty system, creating in man's mind his own worth and responsibility to a supreme source. From its inception it asserted the doctrine of human rights, and equality of all men before God, as no other system has. It said that the Puritans saved England, and we boast of what they accomplished in New England. The Puritans were Calvinists, and they believed, like all who believed in that system, that freedom and equality were undeniable rights. "The Calvinists of New England," said Henry Ward Beecher, "put God first, the commonwealth next and the citizen third, and they lived accordingly."

The speaker proceeded with the history of the church, an outline of which was published with the principal events occurring during the several pastorates, in the columns of the GRAPHIC last week. Speaking of Rev. John Eliot, the first pastor, Rev. Dr. Furber alluded to his great intellectual gifts and his knowledge of the Indian language. He died, said the speaker, after he had been settled pastor a little more than four years, and his death was a serious blow to the church. After his death discussions arose, but harmony was finally restored through the labors of Rev. Nehemiah Hobart, who was ordained pastor Dec. 23, 1674. Rev. Mr. Hobart was a man imbued with a deep sense of piety. He wrote a book, entitled, "The Absence of the Comforter Described and Lamented," in which he alluded to the decline in religious interest, and urged his people to awaken to their sense of obligation to God. He was regarded as one of the leading ministers of New England.

EMINENT FOR PIETY AND SCHOLARSHIP, but exceedingly modest and retiring, Rev. John Cotton, who was ordained Nov. 3, 1714, was greatly beloved and esteemed. He was a man of solid Christian worth, whose labors were crowned with a full measure of success. Rev. Jonas Merriam was ordained March 22, 1758. Only one of his sermons was ever published, that delivered in Portland at an ordination, in which he spoke of the importance of an educated ministry. He was a scholarly man, with a happy skill in composition. He was a practical abolitionist 100 years before the abolition of slavery, for during the early days of his ministry he bought a female slave who was much abused and gave her freedom. Anna Hammond, a daughter of Gen. Hammond, joined the First Church during Mr. Merriam's ministry. She was a lady of great piety and culture, who lived to be over 100 years of age. She was a firm believer in faith and was familiar with the works of the religious writers of the day. From the church records it appears that Whitefield preached in the pulpit of the First Church, once in 1748 and again in 1770. This is a clear indication that the people were in sympathy with his utterances. Rev. Jonathan Homer, D. D., was ordained Feb. 13, 1782, after he had been tendered and refused a call to the pastorate of the Old South Church in Boston, on account of the so-called half-way covenant. Our fathers were firm believers in baptism for children, and the half-way covenant allowed heads of families to present their children for baptism upon acknowledgment of their belief in the church and God, but before their acknowledgment in a saving faith. This practice Jan. 4, 1782, and it was abolished during the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Homer. The first person received into the church in his pastorate was Nathan Park, the father of Prof. Park of Andover, who is with us today, and who participated in these anniversary services. Rev. Dr. Homer was one of the best known ministers in New England. The later years of his life were devoted to a study of the English translation of the Bible. He proved conclusively that the King James version was compiled from other versions, and found out the source from which every verse in the Bible was taken. He ADHERED TO THE OLD FAITH, and his sentiments in religious matters were decidedly Evangelistic and Orthodox, although his views were liberal. He was much interested in the theological institution at Newton Centre. He was in no sense a denominational Christian, but member of the church universal. His colleague, Rev. James Bates, was a practical Christian, with a profound idea of the responsibility of preaching the gospel.

Rev. William Bushnell was installed pastor May 24, 1842, and resigned Dec. 13, 1846. My own pastorate continued from Dec. 1, 1847, until Dec. 3, 1882. When my ministry began, the church was small and weak, but it rallied after a few years. My pulpit utterances, I believe, have been in harmony with the utterances of my predecessors. The present minister is some in the faith, and very successful with the young. We can well say of our church "We mark her goodly battlements and her foundations strong."

At the close of the address, the congregation united in singing, after which the benediction was pronounced.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL. In the afternoon the Sunday school anniversary exercises were observed. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. G. A. Lane, Rev. W. H. Cobb and Rev. George M. Boynton, D. D. The Sabbath school was organized in the summer of 1816 by Miss Mary Clark, assisted by Mrs. Dr. Homer. The Bible and Assembly's Catechism were used. Dea. E. F. Woodward was the first male teacher, for a time the only one, and for many years the superintendent. In 1817 Miss A. Haven and Miss S. Mitchell began to classify and teach the girls who attended the school, the boys being taught by Dea. Woodward. The studies in 1817 were "Cummings' Questions" and catechisms and hymns. The older scholars recited "Watts on the Improvement of the Mind." The school from that time continued to grow, and has a large membership at the present time. The following named persons have been superintendents: Dea. E. F. Woodward, Roswell W. Turner, Luther Paul Bartholomew Wood, John Ward, Albert Little, James F. C. Hyde, Isaac F. Kingsbury, Charles A. Davis, Edward W. Noyes, Nelson Curtis.

EVENING SERVICES. In the evening, at 7 o'clock, the choir rendered the anthem, "To Thee Be Praise Forever," after which Rev. S. F. Smith, D. D., offered prayer. The choir and chorus rendered an anthem and Rev. Theodore J. Holmes, the pastor, delivered an historical address. It was somewhat chiefly a description of the old-time methods of observing the Sabbath, and of worshiping, and of the methods employed. He said that this church worshipped in much the same manner as others of the time. The people were called about 10 o'clock by the ringing of a bell, which method was adopted after some discussion, and first had singing, then reading of the Scriptures, after which the Scriptures were expounded at considerable length, frequently for two hours. An hour glass was placed either in the pulpit or on the deacon's table, where it might readily be seen by the people, in contributing, brought forward their gifts, laying them down before the deacon. Reading the Bible was the universal practice, and reading without comment was called dumb reading. In some societies it was customary to stand during the prayer, and it was sometimes said that there were those, and sometimes Christians even, who make no change of posture any more than at a lecture. The speaker then described some of the methods employed by the church, and its leader in leaving new sermons. Incidentally he mentioned the organ of the First Church which at present is forty years old and very rheumatic, and "who knows," said he, "but what the present anniversary may inspire some generous brother or sister to give us one." A vein of temperance was running through the people at the time, even when the habit of drinking was so popular. John Eliot preached the first temperance sermon when he begged that the poor Indians might be protected against "the temptations which met them at every step when they went into Boston." In conclusion, the speaker said, "faith in the Divine Redeemer was after all the essence of the Pilgrim faith, and without that faith, he added, would there have been any Thomas Shepard, any Harvard College, or any Plymouth Rock?"

Monday's Exercises. At the anniversary meeting held on Monday afternoon in the Congregational church, Judge Robert R. Bishop presided in his easy way. Judge Bishop made some opening remarks appropriate to this season of reminiscences. He spoke of the gratitude the people should feel for the great influence the church had had in the village and among its members. He said that in looking over the complete works of Richard Baxter, presented to the church by the president of the Bank of England many years ago, he had found often allusions to the relations of the church and state, which in those times were so strong. Mr. Bishop was reminded by it of Hon. Geo. F. Hoar, who had spoken in something the same way. The church has a great influence in politics; the great strike in London a short time ago being quelled by Cardinal

Manning leaving his palace and going among the strikers, using his great influence to quell the mob. On his way to his palace he said in defence of the action, "I have but done my duty to my God and to my country."

Mr. Bishop then spoke of the second pastor of the church, Nehemiah Hobart, and his wife, who were his ancestors. In a new words from the present pastor, Rev. Theodore J. Holmes, for the welcoming address.

He gave a hearty welcome to all, both of his church and those of other denominations and hoped that the kindly feeling which had prevailed between the different denominations and churches of this village might continue. He concluded his address, full of good feeling, by the hope that some day the people of all churches should be known as Christians, rather than Orthodox, Baptist and all the other names applied to the religious bodies of people.

Mr. Bishop next expressed his happiness in introducing Rev. Lemuel C. Barnes of the Baptist church. The latter gave his hearty congratulations on this occasion, which had given so much pleasure to all. He spoke of the hundred and more years that this church had stood alone in the only church in the village, for it was not until four years after the founding of our Republic that the Baptist church began its career. He spoke of the remarkable events of the past 225 years, thinking that the next must bring far greater changes in religion, in politics and government. He spoke of the close Mr. Barnes addressed Mr. Bishop, saying he hardly knew how to introduce the next speaker, whether as a soldier, a general in the war, pastor of a church in an important part of the state or as his friend, Rev. Erastus Holmes, who followed him in his bright and interesting address by saying he could not understand why he was asked to be one of the afternoon's speakers, unless it was that he once had the honor of being a deacon of the church in which he was brought up, the First Church of Newton. He said that he had considered the privilege an honor, and he was glad to listen to Dr. Furber's sermons. Mrs. Anna Hammond Pope, who lived to be a hundred and five and gave eighty years of her life to church work, was an ancestor of Mr. Blakeslee. He spoke tenderly of Charles Ward who was killed in this village, and who only lost his life for his country at Gettysburg. His memory will never be erased here where he so bravely started forth to do his duty on the battle-field. He closed with the beautiful words, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for they rest from their labors and their work doth follow them."

Rev. Calvin Cutler was next in order and gave a very interesting account of his church in Auburndale, which was one of the first branches of this church here. This church he felt to be "the mother church," for surely all the other Orthodox societies of Newton, of which there are many, are the children of this church. His anecdotes illustrated his meaning in places and he ended by hoping that "patient continuing in well doing" might be the watchword of the church.

Mr. Bishop read a letter from His Excellency Gov. Ames in answer to an invitation, regretting his inability to be present, and expressing his warm wishes for the church's prosperity. Hon. William Claflin made the concluding address. He spoke briefly upon the relations between church and state. He said that though the original idea of the Pilgrims was to found the church and then the state and have them in conjunction, they were now distinctly separated, and he hoped would always remain so. He next reviewed the days of the church during his remembrance, alluding to the period when he had been a teacher in the Sunday School. I shall never forget, said he, the stirring meetings that we held in this church prior to and during the war of the rebellion. I recall also the sacred services when we met at the obsequies of some departed hero who had given up life for country's sake. No question will probably ever arise again that will engender the bitter hatred and animosity caused by civil war. Should any great question arise in which the honor of home and country is threatened, the best preparation is through the church, such instruction as has been given from this pulpit during the history of the First Church.

He had been expected that the concluding address at the afternoon service would be delivered by Rev. N. G. Clark, D. D., but he was unable to be present on account of a severe cold. Numerous letters of regret were read from gentlemen who had been invited to attend the services, including Rev. W. A. Lamb and a prayer by Prof. W. E. Huntington, D. D. After the next hymn the choir and chorus gave by request, "Jerusalem the Golden," which was sung the evening before. At the close of this Dr. Furber was introduced by Mr. Bishop.

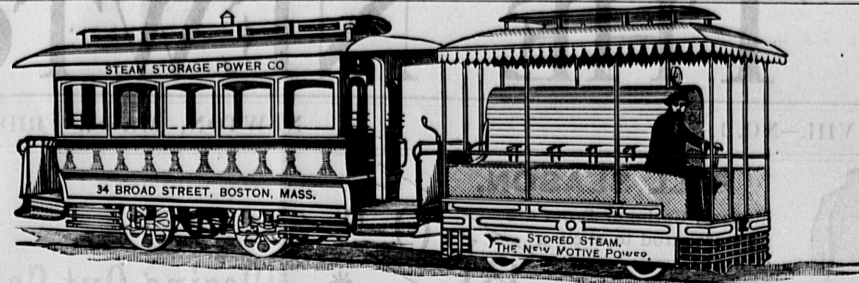

The former had been happily disappointed, he said, in preparing for this celebration. He had told Mr. Holmes when it was first proposed, that the church had never done anything remarkable and that he hardly thought they could collect material enough for such an anniversary, as the records had been burned. But after three months investigation a great deal of interest had come to light and the more he had studied it, the prouder he was of the church in which he had labored so long. The celebrated names of John Eliot, John Cotton and Nehemiah Hobart were certainly to be remembered with pride. The latter he said had been ranked with the eighteen most prominent divines of New England of his time. The missionaries alone which had gone out from the mother church were enough to give it honor. The Williams family, of which so many had gone to missions in all parts of the world, were one of the most prominent in the church. William Williams was for more than fifty years settled in Hatfield and his son the same time in Lebanon and his son elsewhere as long. Williams College was founded by one of the family.

The next to address the large audience was Mr. Winfield S. Slocum of Newtonville. Mr. Slocum thought that he must have been one of the speakers of the evening on account of his wife's having been a member of the First church. He said he was very much surprised to learn that this church had had only nine ministers in 225 years, while they in Newtonville had had five in twenty years. When he recalled Milton, Bunyan, and others as celebrated, as having lived at the time of the church's founding, he felt that it was indeed old, for it surely connects that time with the present. Mr. Slocum concluded his interesting address by the hope that these anniversaries might bring new love and consecration for the work to come. Some letters which had been received were spoken of by Mr. Bishop, all of which bore the good wishes and congratulations of the writers. One was from Prof. William T. G. Shield, whose mother was an inmate of Mr. Rice's home for many years. Another was from Dr. Daniel T. Fiske, whose wife was once an honored member of the church. The former made a beautiful reference to Dr. Furber and his sainted wife.

THE IMPROVED SYSTEM OF PROPELLING STREET CARS.

A new system for developing and utilizing steam for power, without smoke, cinders, noise or escape of steam, at much less cost than by any other known method for obtaining and maintaining power. There is no failure nor uncertainty in its operation, and it is absolutely safe. For street cars and other service requiring portable power, it has no equal. Secured by U. S. letters patent. A prominent mechanical engineer says that the possibilities of this invention have not been equalled by any recent invention—except the Bell Telephone and Sawyer-Mann for electric power. The system has been organized for the development and introduction of this system, throughout the New England States, which territory is owned exclusively by it—with a capital of $300,000—par value shares, $10—and is having a Power Car built by the Palman Palace Car Co., which will be exhibited in Boston and vicinity in September. The first issue of certificates will be from the office of the company, 34 Broad street, after August 1. Subscriptions may be made for the stock at par—payable 25 per cent. cash, 25 per cent. 30 days, 50 per cent. 60 days—to an amount not exceeding $50,000.

Dr. Samuel F. Smith asked for permission to speak a few words in the line of thought. Dr. Furber was brought to his mind by speaking of the Williams family. After speaking of various members he said: "The American Board of Foreign Missions owed its being to one of the family and so he felt that this church could in reality be called the mother of all missions to foreign lands."

Judge Bishop then spoke of the church in West Newton, it having been the first to leave this church to start for itself and then introduced Rev. H. J. Patrick, the pastor.

Mr. Patrick has thought his church old, it being 108 years in existence, but he said that they must feel younger after hearing of the work of 225 years in the mother church. The younger society had had hard work to break away from here, having finally to appeal to the general court to allow them. The court limited their district very carefully, the Charles River on one side and around to Watertown on another. No one in that district was allowed to attend church elsewhere. The church here gave a part of its pewter communion service to the new society and Mr. Patrick showed the audience a much treasured pewter tankard once belonging to that society.

He said many prominent names in his church were from Newton Centre, Ward, Jackson, Craft, Fuller, Woodward and others. Rev. William Greenough was a great and true friend of Jonathan Homer here and that his friendship had put the two churches together. Mr. Patrick said on coming to the pulpit of the West Newton church he had had a warm welcome from his brother, Dr. Furber and his wife, whose friendship he had prized highly.

Judge Bishop then introduced Rev. Walcott Calkins, D. D., as pastor of the branch church which had achieved most. Mr. Calkins began by saying that he was very glad that his church was not the oldest for he had always noticed that all the experiments were tried on the oldest and that they were obliged to pass through much tribulation. His church had escaped this and had profited by the experiences of the West Newton church. When the church was burned and the box in the corner stone opened, it was found what it had cost the founders of the church so much to secure that nothing one does for the church would seem a sacrifice in comparison. He was not surprised that they had needed an extra fire at his church after hearing of a hundred and fifty years without any in the mother church. Mr. Calkins thought it a remarkable fact that no church quarrels had arisen as to so many societies. The church should be grateful to God for sparing them that. When the great disaster came to the Newton church in the absence of its pastor, the people sent for Dr. Furber to help them, as Mr. Calkins felt he should have done had he been there.

After singing by the choir and chorus led by Col. I. F. Kingsbury, Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D. D. of Cambridge made an address of half an hour, which we can only speak of briefly. He opened his remarks by saying he should tell his parish all the good things said by Mr. Bishop about it, and the chief facts concerning this church, which would also concern his. He spoke at length of the Puritans and their struggle here, saying that he himself was a Puritan of the Puritans. If he was not a Puritan he should become a Quaker. He alluded to all the showy churches of Europe, which he had been. One was lost in admiring and worshipping the building instead of God. A simple New England church to him was far more sanctified. He said in closing "I believe finally in the city government churches we have nothing to covet from Europe if we keep faith with our predecessors and carry on their good work." Dr. McKenzie paid his tribute also to Dr. and Mrs. Furber. In conclusion, he said, "God's great intent was that we should move shoulder to shoulder, heart to heart, on to him."

After the singing of "Coronation" by the congregation, Dr. Furber pronounced the benediction. Among those present, during the day, were Rev. John F. Gleason, pastor of the Congregational Church, Needham; C. P. Bancroft, Brookline; Rev. Jonathan Edwards Grant, Haverhill; Dr. Joseph N. Bacon, Newton; Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, Worcester; Rev. L. W. King, Oak Hill; Mr. Franklin Bacon, Newton; Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D. D., Cambridge; Mr. H. A. Ball, Newton, members of the city government churches we have nothing to covet from Europe if we keep faith with our predecessors and carry on their good work." Dr. McKenzie paid his tribute also to Dr. and Mrs. Furber. In conclusion, he said, "God's great intent was that we should move shoulder to shoulder, heart to heart, on to him."

One of the principal attractions in connection with the anniversary exercises Monday was the exhibition in the chapel of memorials and relics associated with the history of the church. In the collection among other articles, were portraits of Rev. Mr. Bushnell, Mr. Henry Gibbs (born in 1684), Dea. Anna Hammond Pope (born in 1754), Dea. Anna Cook, Dea. Luther Paul, Capt. Samuel Hyde, Capt. Thomas Prentice (born in 1670), Rev. Increase Davies and Mr. William Jackson, the historian, a sketch of the first meeting house, a sketch of the meeting house of 1805, chairs and furniture used in the study of Rev. Jonathan Homer, the fifth pastor; autograph album, signed by Rev. John Eliot, the Indian apostle, which was loaned by Dr. Ellsworth Elliot of New York; Bible given by Rev. Nehemiah Hobart to his daughter, who was the great-grandmother of Judge Robert R. Bishop; violoncello and violin, used in the old choir; silver communion services, presented at different dates, from 1727 to 1788; sword, carried by Capt. John Woodward in the battle of Lexington; foot stove, used in the church from 1810 until 1847, and a collection of old books, Bibles and pamphlets belonging to older people in the society. The cases in which a portion of the exhibit was displayed were kindly loaned by Mr. Henry S. Williams, Centre street.

Miscellaneous.

Boston man—"Well, my boy, how is real estate in the West, active?" "Drumme!" (just back from Kansas)—"Active? Well, I should say so. A cyclone carried a 100-acre farm forty miles the other day. It's a little too active for me."—Kearney Enterprise.

The Bloom Was High. First tramp (after a fruitless raid on a hen-roost)—"Bill, I wonder what made that blasted rooster fall off his perch and commence to crow so loud?" Second tramp—"You forgot to cover up your nose and he thought it was sunrise."—Town Topics.

Young lady (in great store)—"Let me see a bonnet suitable for an old lady." Salesgirl—"For your mother?" Young Lady—"No; for myself. I don't expect to get the change from my purchase until I'm old enough to be a grandmother, so I shall be prepared."—Lawrence American.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this country. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but the vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—(Get a free trial bottle at Arthur Hudson's drugstore.)

We are willing to bear personal testimony to the efficacy and value of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which we have been advertising some years in our paper, having used it for blood impurities with great success. It is a preparation of standard merit, made of perfectly pure ingredients, and thoroughly effective in cleansing and purifying the system. For eruptions, boils, etc., it can be relied upon every time. Our own experience with it has been most gratifying, and we are glad to give it this endorsement.—Athol (Mass.) Transcript.

NEWTON TARIFF REFORM CLUB

A TARIFF IS A TAX.

Address all communications to the Secretary of the Newton Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre, Mass.

Our Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Newton Tariff Reform Club was held Monday evening, with Vice President Stephen Thacher in the chair, President E. B. Haskell being called away at the last moment. The following is the address of the vice president:

This club was organized in January last, and has had a steady growth; it ought to be joined by every citizen of Newton who sympathizes with its objects.

The executive committee has good reason to believe that if the members of the club would endeavor, as opportunity offers, to get new members, the club would grow apace; for there are many friends of the movement who only need a gentle reminder or a little urging to persuade them that their duty is to join.

Your executive committee has held meetings nearly every month, discussing plans of action, and as to whether public meetings were advisable or so forth.

It was thought better to postpone a general gathering until some agitation in Congress or otherwise should arouse public interest.

President Haskell has suggested a monthly dinner at a moderate cost, at the Woodland Park Hotel, the coming season, with one or two well-known advocates of tariff reform, as guests, to address the club.

This scheme would serve to bring the members into more intimate relations, benefiting them and advancing the cause we have espoused. This is a proper subject for consideration to-night, or it can be referred to your new executive committee.

Any other hints as to future action by the club, tending to forward the reform, would be gladly received.

Our Secretary and Treasurer has been diligent, faithful and indefatigable—he has given a large part of his spare time, (and he is a busy man), for the benefit of the club and its objects.

Those who have read the column in the Newton Graphic, devoted to "tariff reform," since April, can see—when they hear that he has had little assistance—that he is a host in himself. "The right man in the right place."

He will shortly tell you more fully of his work.

And now a word or two upon the situation and prospects.

Mr. Gladstone speaking at Leeds, in 1882, said, that before England changed her navigation laws and adopted free-trade, America had 4-5ths of the World's commerce and the best of it at that; but that since America took up the protective system and England dropped it, the relative position of the two countries had been reversed; England having secured 4-5ths of the commerce of the world and that the best of it. England, he said, need never fear losing this primacy while America keeps the protective system!

And is not Gladstone right? Where is our merchant marine? Both dead and buried under our navigation and tariff laws—where they will remain till our legislators, in their wisdom, see fit to leave partisanship behind, draw a few wholesome lessons from history, and learn how to read the signs of the times! Let them unlearn their conception of patriotism and they may yet be able to imagine that the greatest good of the fewest number is not what they are sent to Washington to maintain.

Give our ship owners the right to register, under the stars and stripes, their vessels wherever built. Give our ship builders and our manufacturers their raw materials free, and such a resurrection will come to our commerce and our shipping as will make our country the mistress of the seas!

But there are those who have seen "the hand-writing on the wall," at any rate in New England. The seed, sown by the tariff reformers in the presidential campaign of 1888, watered by the inexorable showers of economic law, has borne fruit.

This year, there is no national election to dim the spectacles of the partisan manufacturer. Our worthy governor and other New England manufacturers have waked up to find their business closed out or on the brink of ruin. Now, they see that the reformer of last year didn't cry "wolf!" without cause. Now, when they call for free iron and free coal, they find themselves struggling hand to hand with the giant monopolies of Pennsylvania. Who can predict a victory for New England in such a contest! And yet it is a "house divided against itself."

Some of the raw material manufacturers are asking for free wool, too.

Courage, my manufacturing friends, you who perchance put your party's interest before your country's and your own, courage!

Has not the great orator of the High Tariff party spoken for you? He has! He has done it. Listen! The Honorable Chauncey M. Depew has also heard a voice and he is moved to exclaim, that the American people must not be superfluously taxed! and mark, further: that the American citizen must have a market for his surplus products! Ah! my friends, there's just the rub! We ought to be relieved from superfluous taxation; we ought to find a foreign market. Let us tell the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, that the way and the only way to attain these most desirable ends is to remove the duties upon raw materials and abolish that barbarous shipping law. Let us refer him to the author of the present War Tariff, Mr. Morrill; who, when reporting the bill establishing it, is credited with saying, that France and England have entry to the markets of the world because they let in raw materials free, and that that is a necessary policy for any country seeking a foreign market.

Some of the Western States, notably Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, have been holding Tariff Reform barbecues or picnics this summer—there were 30 or more in Missouri last month—where tariff reform addresses are made. And so the good work goes on.

Our motto is: Lower duties on the necessities of life and raw materials free. Let us keep that on our colors nailed to the mast, adding to it the watchwords adopted by Wm. Lloyd Garrison in his "Liberator": "Fiat Justitia, Ruat Caelum!"

The Secretary on behalf of the Committee submits the following report:—

The organization in Newton on January 24 of the current year of a Tariff Reform Club included two things, an object and a method. The object is clearly defined in the Constitution:—"to secure a reform of the present tariff, especially a reduction of the duties upon raw materials and the necessities of life." The method was left to the Executive Committee, and at meetings held in February, March, May and September, the Committee adopted the various measures which are herein reported.

The first thing to be done was to reach all who were in sympathy with the movement. Circulars were sent to all known to be with us, containing a request to join and a further request to forward to the Secretary additional names and addresses of supposed reformers. To these addresses similar circulars were sent. Later, lists were made of the names of all who had not responded to the circulars, and the members of the Committee, aided by H. E. Bothfeld of Newton, made personal appeals to these gentlemen, many of whom are now members. Our total number to-day is 124.

The character of our membership is of interest. Manufacturers, merchants, and practical business men form half of the list. The mills and factories owned and controlled by our members produce belting, boots and shoes, cordage, duck, iron-work, leather, locomotives, machinery, paper, paints, saddlery, and woollens. Our merchants deal in agricultural implements, crockery, chemicals, furniture, hides, meats, produce, paper, paints, ship stores, cottons, and woollens. Not mercantile occupation is without its share. Reformers as clerk, salesman, or book-keeper. Add to these the bankers, publishers, farmers and mechanics, and we have two-thirds of the club. The rest of us are doctrinaires, such as ministers, teachers, lawyers, journalists, authors, physicians, and office-holders. We note in passing that the pair of lonely, but valiant defenders of the High Tariff in our local paper are themselves despised doctrinaires, the one a teacher, the other a lawyer!

Having reached our friends it remained to keep them interested in the work. The doubtful also were to be won over in some way, and even the champions of the Senate Bill must be approached. Among the various measures suggested the Committee decided to use during the current year but one, adapted in its comprehensiveness to do something towards all the objects named. With this end in view the regular Club funds the Committee were enabled to purchase by liberal compensation a column in the NEWTON GRAPHIC. Here we could communicate with our friends, argue with the doubtful, and make kindly out-determined assault upon our foes. The editor of the GRAPHIC, although not a member of the Club, has treated the Committee with constant and manly generosity. The Committee think that the column has done good work for the cause. The GRAPHIC has a large circulation among the Protectionists, and this repeated sowing of good seed even upon this stony ground must result in a bountiful harvest. An endeavor has been made to appeal to every good taste, and fables and parodies for the wise and prudent have been tempered with logic and statistics for the babes and sucklings. During the past six months nearly one hundred articles have been published on such varied topics as Free Fish, Woollens and Worsteds, Commerce, Iron, England, Tinned Plate, Colleges, Raw Materials, Alexander Hamilton, Gamewell Company, Gov. Ames, Nonantum Worsteds Co., Wages, Tea and Coffee, First Tariff, A Paper Mill, Henry Clay, Massachusetts in Congress, Protection and Selfishness, Republican Convention.

It may be well to say a word about the future. First, the Committee believe that a personal appeal by every member of this club to join the Club will result in a large increase in our membership. Secondly, they would suggest the advisability of holding social gatherings of the club to promote fellowship and interest. Thirdly, they would urge that if public interest is aroused at any time by Congressional discussion or otherwise, the Club shall satisfy that interest by public debates or lectures. Fourthly, they would advise the continuance of the GRAPHIC column.

Finally the Committee desire to thank the Club for the hearty co-operation that has always been freely extended to them whenever a call has been made. The Club and its work have been noticed several times in the Boston papers, and the New York Evening Post and the People's Cause have had full accounts of what we are doing. Non-resident reformers have subscribed to the GRAPHIC, and even contributed to its columns; and letters of good will have come from various parts of the State. Rejoicing therefore in the belief that the work of the Club in its way is doing something to help bring about the great moral and material reform now fast coming upon the land, the Committee, through its Secretary-Treasurer, respectfully submits the foregoing report.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.
Oct. 7, 1889.

Letter from the President.

Boston, Oct. 5, 1889.

C. Howard Wilson, Esq.,

DEAR SIR:

I am suddenly called to Chicago on business which cannot be postponed, which will prevent my attendance at the Annual Meeting of the Newton Tariff Reform Club. I sincerely regret this, for I had counted upon real pleasure in speaking briefly to the faithful there gathered of the steady growth of public sentiment in favor of a reform of the tariff, especially of the abolition of the burdensome taxes on raw materials.

I feel more confident than ever that we are on the right side of this question, and that discussion and experience will bring a majority of American citizens to our way of thinking in the near future. In fact, I believe we have a majority now, though its voice is temporarily silenced in Congress by the selfish interest of powerful monopolies, comparatively few in number and so easily combined for the corruption of politics.

Very truly yours,

E. B. HASKELL.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free; that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

How Nice
Miss Bell is looking, Addie. Yes, Laura. Why only a year ago her face was completely covered with pimples, blotches, and sores. She told mother that she showed her nice, clear complexion to her using Sulphur Bitters. Well, Laura, I shall try them too.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHIC

A NEW VOLUME.

With this number the GRAPHIC begins its eighteenth year, with more encouraging prospects than ever before in its somewhat eventful history. During the past year its circulation has steadily increased, and now there is hardly a family in Newton that is not numbered among its regular readers. A reference to our advertising columns will show the names of nearly all the prominent Newton merchants, and the large number of Boston advertisements show that its value as an advertising medium is appreciated. The success of the GRAPHIC is the more gratifying as it was not gained by any sensational efforts, but by steady and faithful work, and it now has as large and efficient a corps of reporters as local correspondents as any suburban paper, while in the past year its special articles from local writers have many of them been widely read and copied. Some three years and a half ago we were told that Newton was a good field for a live newspaper, and our experience has proved that the statement was correct. In closing, we would remark that now is the time to subscribe, and in no other way can you get so much for your money as by investing two dollars in a year's subscription to the GRAPHIC.

THE TARIFF REFORMERS.

The Newton Tariff Reform Club's annual meeting was productive of some excellent addresses, which are given in the club's column on the 3rd page. Public sentiment has changed a good deal since the club first started its column, and many prominent Republicans such as Governor Ames and Hon. Peleg McFarlin are in the ranks of the Tariff Reformers, while the threatened danger to New England interests have brought out such prominent Boston merchants and honored Republicans as Hon. Alden Spears, in favor of unrestricted intercourse with Canada. The reaction has set in against the extreme position forced upon the party in the last campaign, a position with which a large number of the Republican voters were not in sympathy, although they ran the risk of being boycotted if they had acknowledged such a sentiment. These men are good protectionists, but they do not believe in running the theory into the ground, or in making a tariff wall so high as to destroy all our foreign trade. They believe in taking their protection in moderation, and not in imitating the tariff policy of the Chinese. Like Chauncey M. Depew in his recent speech at the New York Republican convention, they see the necessity of having a foreign market for our surplus products, and if the tariff on raw materials which we are compelled to import is placed at such a high figure as to forbid our competing with the manufacturers of other nations, it strikes of course a fatal blow at our commerce.

The remark of Gladstone, quoted in Vice President Thacher's address, as to the cause of the decay of American commerce, is worth thinking about, now that there is so much being said about the best way to revive our merchant marine, and our foreign commerce. In the days when we had a great fleet of merchant ships, trading with every quarter of the globe, there was no need of paying heavy subsidies to make our foreign trade flourish, and but for the large surplus in the national treasury, very little would be heard now about giving great subsidies to steamship lines, which the people have to pay.

It is to be hoped that the New England senators and congressmen will in the next congress follow the advice of our Republican State convention, and represent and work for the interests of New England, instead of servilely following the commands of the Pennsylvania mine owners and monopolists. New England is old enough and has important interests enough at stake to have a policy of her own, and ought to have men in congress intelligent enough to work for it. If Pennsylvania men threaten to destroy the whole tariff if the duties on coal and iron ore are repealed, after the style of the Ohio wool-growers, it will only show how little honesty there is in their profession of belief in protection principles,—that they are protectionists only as long as their individual interests are benefitted by being so, which is just what the free traders have charged. The cause of protection is not benefitted by such selfish followers as this. If their devotion to protection is what they claim it is, they should still cling to it even if a few duties on raw materials are repealed. The repeal would give a great impetus to the lines of manufacturing in which the higher paid workmen are employed, work would be more steady and better paid, and it is the welfare of the workmen for which the whole tariff system was devised, according to campaign orators and the American Protectionist. The Pennsylvania mine-owners ought to be willing to have their profits slightly reduced for such a desirable consummation as this.

CAMBRIDGE has become so dissatisfied with its telephone service that a committee has been appointed to look into the matter. The same unsatisfactory state of things exists in Newton. The introduction of election cars into Boston renders it impossible to converse with people at the Boston end of the wire, even at the expense of much lost time and temper, and frequent complaints are made of the unsatisfactory service between different parts of Newton. When the electric cars are running in Newton matters will be in a worse condition still. The telephone company can well afford to give its subscribers better service, without increasing the price, and unless they do so they are likely to lose a great share of their patronage. It is said that by putting in a return wire, conversation with Boston could be carried on with perfect ease, and the extra wire would not be so very expensive. For an invention that has been in general use so many years, very little improvement has been made in the telephone service, and some people go so far as to say that it is not nearly as satisfactory as it was two or three years ago here in Newton, where no trouble as yet exists from electric cars.

The question is asked why the school board, or the superintendent, or whoever has charge of it, should pay $10.25 for wood for the school houses, when it can buy excellent wood from the city farm for $9 a cord, thus making an important saving, as many cords are needed. It seems strange, also, that proposals for wood are not advertised for, the same as coal, as perhaps something could be saved in this way. There is certainly need enough of looking carefully after the school expenses, Newton's schools costing more proportionally than those of any other city in Middlesex county. In this connection some pertinent questions appeared in another local paper last week, to which we give the benefit of our wider circulation, as follows:

Need our schools even in spite of scattered territory, cost more than the whole of those of more than two-thirds of all the cities and towns of Massachusetts? and is the instruction in them as much better in quality and amount as their cost is greater? and, finally, as the average appropriation per child for the whole State is $19.71 would there not be glory enough in being above the average, that is in reducing the appropriation per child, to anything not less than $20.00?

In another column will be found the sentiment of the Fitchburg Sentinel in regard to the speakership question, and it will be heartily echoed by all who studied carefully the doings of the last house. The election of Speaker Barrett was, as the Sentinel says, a mistake, and it will not do to repeat it. If Representative Slocum had been chosen speaker, or indeed any of the other candidates, it would have been much better for the reputation of the last legislature. A speaker should have the respect of the members, at the very least, and he should be able also to maintain something like order. It is to be hoped that whatever representatives Newton sends will have right views on this important question.

A good deal of space is given to-day to the report of the 225th anniversary exercises at the First Church of Newton Centre. The history of the church is so intimately connected with the early history of Newton, that the exercises will be of interest to every citizen. The church has done an excellent work in the past two hundred years and it has a record of which the city may well feel proud.

The representative caucuses, Saturday evening, should be well attended. Representative Gilman will without doubt be nominated for another year, and apparently Ward 4 intends to nominate ex-Alderman Fiske, which choice would be heartily endorsed by the rest of the city. It is such men as Mr. Fiske who are needed in the legislature and who would be a credit to Newton.

SOME inquiries have been made about bound volumes of the GRAPHIC, by people who wish to keep them for reference. The one just closed is ready for the book-binder, and a limited number can be secured by an early application to this office.

THE Milford Journal is so enthusiastic over Mellen that its readers fear it is going to join the Mellen party. We should be sorry to lose the Journal from the Republican ranks.

Overhead Wires.
The overhead electric wires, especially for the electric lights, are undoubtedly dangerous to firemen. The National Association of Fire Engineers adopted a series of nine resolves, one of which is given below:

Whereas, the present method of overhead wires, carrying high potential currents suitable for arc lights, electric railroads, power, etc., are exceedingly dangerous, especially to firemen when in the discharge of their duties, therefore be it resolved, that we, the National Association of Fire Engineers, in convention assembled, emphatically assert that the only safe method for such currents is underground, and place our most unequivocal condemnation on all overhead or suspended wires for the reason of its great danger to life, as well as to property.

"Clara," he exclaimed, laying his hand upon his cardiac region, "I have long looked forward for this opportunity to tell you that I love you with all the ardor of a nature free from guile and duplicity. Say the little word, Clara, which shall make me the happiest of men. Or, if your maiden modesty seals your ruby lips, give me some little keepsake which shall mutually say that my love is returned, and which shall be a constant reminder of my hour of happiness. Stay! Let it be one of your golden tresses, just one little lock of your fragrant hair." Clara blushed, and seeing that George took up the scissors from the table, she murmured: "Nay, George, never mind the scissors; here it is (and she removed an affluent switch); take it; it cost me ten dollars, but such love as yours is worth far more than that." —[Boston Transcript.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 30 years' experience, is Electric Bitters. Thousands of others added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at Arthur Hudson's druggists."

Some Foolish People.

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the medicinal stage. They say, "Oh, it will wear away." But in most cases it wears them away. In other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla will not do impossibilities. Its proprietors tell plainly what it has done, submit proofs from a crowd of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The experience of others is sufficient assurance that you will not be disappointed in the result.

When you need a good, safe laxative, ask your druggist for a box of Ayer's Pills, and you will find that they give perfect satisfaction. For indigestion, torpid liver, and sick headache there is nothing superior. Leading physicians recommend them.

Indigestion

It is not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved, and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a hell, and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and I could eat no more. I tried every remedy, but all in vain. I then tried the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful use, I was able to resume my usual duties. I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

Denver Investments.
—Mr. E. P. Wright, a former highly esteemed resident of Newton, is now in business in Denver, Col., where he was for many years cashier of the State National bank. In a card in another column he calls the attention of his Newton friends to Denver real estate loans, and investments, which are as safe and profitable as those of any city in the Union. WEDDING IN SYRACUSE.

THE NUPTIALS OF ARTHUR GORDON WEBSTER AND ELIZABETH MUNROE TOWNSEND.

The Syracuse Standard of Oct. 9th, contains the following account of a wedding which will interest many Newton people:

Yesterday in this city was a day after a woman's own heart, for it witnessed four marriages. The touch of nature which makes the whole world kin must surely be the desire and respect for marriage, and yesterday everywhere about the city were to be met faces happy and eager with looks of joyous anticipation which were all the brighter for the cheering sunlight which warmed the air for the first time in many days. And as the afternoon wore on people in various parts of the city took their several ways to the scenes of Hymen's triumphs.

At 5 o'clock took place the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Munroe Townsend, daughter of Mrs. Robert Townsend of Newton, Mass. The ceremony was performed in the Reformed church, James street, by the Rev. Dr. Joaquin Elmendorf of Albany, in the presence of friends and relatives in numbers to fill the church. The embowered platform was profusely decorated with tropical plants and trees, with festal plants and trailing vines, and ranged along its border, while the upright gas jets were entwined with greens interspersed with white rose buds, and suspended from the arched ceiling was a bell formed of silver-laid glass and flowers. In the rear centre greens and flowers banked the space back of the minister and on either side lamps shed a softened light upon the whole.

Promptly at the hour set for the ceremony the heavy strains of the Mendelssohn march filled the room, and the bridal procession, numbering 34 people, entered. Passing solemnly down the western aisle, the procession filed slowly upon the platform, grouping itself about the officiating minister.

The ushers and bridesmaids were followed by an octet of little pages and flower girls strewn with roses in the way before the bride, who appeared in white satin with angel sleeves, and with the orange blossoms and point lace veil in which her mother had been married. When the final vows by the minister had been said, the procession passed down and out by way of the eastern aisle. The best man was Prof. Joseph S. A. of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and the maid-of-honor Miss Mary Walker Townsend, sister of the bride; the bridesmaids were Miss Van Santvoord of New York, Miss Marion Whitney of New Haven, Miss Angeline Jackson of Utica, Miss Sarah R. Townsend and Miss Kate B. Walsh of Albany, Miss Maude Benson of Detroit, Miss Mattie Shewell of Boston, Miss Ruth Flannery of Rome, Miss Gertrude Shipman of New York, and Miss Mary Huntington of this city; and the ushers were: E. B. Whitney, Alfred Thatcher, and G. R. Livingston of New York; Wm. Hest of Cleveland; Warner Forbes of Peace Dale, N. Y.; Mr. Clark of Oswego, and Charles Walker Andrews, Burnett Nash, James Lawrence Hamilton and Allen Forbes of this city.

The pages and flower girls were: Master George Emory, Dennis McCarthy, Franklin Townsend, Sans Kenyon, Reginald Burdick and Throop Martin Wilder, and Misses Kathleen Comstock and Nan Hancock.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Frederick Townsend of Albany. After the ceremony a large number of relatives and friends gathered in the hall, where the bride and groom were greeted by the bride's friends. The bride's friends were: Mrs. Townsend in James street, where a most pleasant evening was passed and a collation served by Teal. When the cake was cut the ring fell to Miss Flannery and the bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Shewell, the groom's cousin. Mr. and Mrs. Webster left the house early, and after a trip to Washington and to Newton, where they will visit Mr. Webster's family, will sail on October 23 for Germany, where Mr. Webster is to complete his scientific studies in Berlin.

—As noted in the GRAPHIC there are at last prospects of Newton's abundant home talent being given a chance to develop itself in a vocal society, the plans of which are soon to be made public. Of such a society Newton stands sorely in need, and it certainly ought to be grandly supported. The teaching of vocal music has, for some reason, long since been excluded from the High school course of study, and naturally our singers are obliged to join the Boston societies. To these singers such a society as that contemplated will offer many advantages, and with the hearty cooperation of every one success will be assured.

—Rev. Mr. Spaulding's lecture on Christian Rome and St. Peter's, the first in his course at Channing church parlors, came off Wednesday evening, and some two hundred were present, including most of the clergymen of the city and some thirty students from Lasell. The lecture was fully and beautifully illustrated, and a full report is given on page seven. Rev. Mr. Spaulding is a very attractive speaker, and the audience were very enthusiastic and probably the attendance at the next lecture will be largely increased. The subject next Wednesday evening will be "Pagan Rome, the city of the Caesars," and the pictures will be an attractive feature. Tickets for the remaining lectures of the course will be $1.50.

—Waltham's letter carriers have to carry revolvers, to protect them from the vicious dogs, along these routes, and they are instructed to use them to break the Newtop carriers also suffered from the ugly dogs on their routes, and several of them have been bitten and had their clothes torn. It would be well for the owners of ugly dogs to either chain them up, or else get their mail at the post office, and not endanger the limbs and clothing of the faithful letter carriers. Otherwise the Newtop carriers will have to follow the example of those of Waltham, and some one may have a dead dog to take care of.

—In regard to the Atchison plan of reorganization, Mr. Isaac T. Burr was seen by a GRAPHIC representative on Tuesday morning. He said that he had just returned from a trip West, after an absence of seven days, and that he had been unable, owing to the pressure of business matters and lack of time, to read and properly digest the proposed reorganization plan. "I do not know," said Mr. Burr, "whether it would altogether commend itself to my judgment or not, yet I should generally support the plan of the management, because I believe that it has been prepared after conscientious and careful consideration. I am convinced that the men who have prepared the plan are loyal to the property that they represent, and that they are sincere in their desire to break the monopoly of the future welfare and prosperity of the road. It is a great financial crisis in the history of the company, and the consequence of not supporting the plan, as I see it, would be disastrous. The greatest good for the greatest number demands the support of the management in the plan proposed. Strenuous efforts have been made to break the monopoly, and it is for the best interests of the security holders to prevent such a result."

Associate Members of Post 62.
We understand that Charles Ward Post, No. 62, G. A. R. are about to begin their usual "Camp Fires," which have been so much enjoyed by the comrades and their friends in the past, and we congratulate the associate member of this Post on the good times coming, as they are always invited to be present whenever the Post are to have a social meeting. By the way, the comrades are very much pleased, and feel highly honored by the gentlemen who have become associated with them, and are assisting in making the evenings enjoyable. The Veterans cannot have too good times or too many of them. Among the names of the associate members are noticed the following:

His Honor, the Mayor, Heman M. Burr, Chas. A. Kellogg, S. E. Chubbuck, C. E. Robins, James E. C. Hyde, E. S. Hamblen, Nat'l. T. Allen, Moses G. Crane, D. W. Farquhar, Samuel Farquhar, Henry W. It is no wonder the comrades are very proud of their list of associate members, and it is doubted very much if any other organization could show such an honorary membership of leading citizens. Quite a number of gentlemen are intending to present their names for associate membership, and have been supplied with blanks for this purpose.

Associated Charities.

THE STREET RAILWAY.

NEW CONNECTING ROUTE PROPOSED BY WAY OF NONANTUM.

Work on laying the tracks of the Newton Street Railway is progressing quite rapidly. The side locations between Newtonville and West Newton are completed and the construction men commenced Tuesday to lay the rails of the centre location between the truck house and Harvard street. After that work is completed the centre locations between Elm street and Greenwood avenue and Adams street and Centre street will be finished. The Newton end of the route will be completed by Nov. 1, if the conditions of weather are favorable. The track, opposite Crafts street, has not been closed in, as it has not yet been decided in regard to the location of the power station.

Watertown, having refused to grant the company the location desired, is likely, it now appears, to be left out in the cold, for a new connecting route has been proposed through Nonantum, which is looked upon with much favor by the management and seems to offer more desirable features, both as a paying investment for the company and as a good thing for the residents of that part of Newton, at present poorly accommodated with railroad accommodations. The route suggested connects the Washington street tracks in this city, with the location over River street, already granted by the Waltham aldermen, by way of River, Farwell, North, Crafts and Watertown streets, through to Nonantum; thence through Watertown, Pearl, Centre streets to Newton. The new route would be of great advantage to residents of Nonantum, and it is very probable that steps will be taken by the company to secure the additional locations required in order to complete the circuit between Waltham and this city.

Republican Representative Convention.

A Republican representative convention was held in the City Hall, West Newton, Wednesday evening, for the purpose of nominating two candidates to represent Newton in the next Legislature. The convention was called to order by Mr. C. B. Coffin, chairman of the ward and city committee, and organized by the choice of Mr. Thomas Weston as chairman and Mr. C. Bowditch Coffin, secretary. The chair appointed Messrs. A. L. Rand, Willard Marcy and E. L. Pickard a committee on credentials. The committee reported 33 delegates present, entitled to recognition in the convention, one absentee and one delegate present from Ward 1 without his credentials. It was voted to admit the delegate from Ward 1, on motion of Mr. Goodrich.

Hon. Levi C. Wade then moved that Mr. Gorham D. Gilman be nominated by acclamation. Mr. J. B. Goodrich offered an amendment that both the present representatives be nominated by acclamation. Mr. Wade said that Mr. W. S. Slocum had declined to serve another term. Mr. W. F. Slocum corroborated the statement and said that his son, Mr. W. S. Slocum, felt that he could not serve another year. He was very grateful to the citizens for their past support and encouragement, but his own private business required more time than he could give to it with the additional legislative duties. He, therefore, desired to withdraw his name.

Mr. E. L. Pickard said that Ward 4 was unanimous for Mr. Slocum and that the delegates had been instructed to use all honorable means to induce him to serve another year. He thought that he would accept if the convention saw fit to nominate him. The amendment was then put and lost. Mr. Wade's motion was then put by the chair and Mr. G. D. Gilman was nominated by acclamation. Mr. Wade then moved that an informal ballot be proceeded with for the second choice. Mr. Goodrich offered an amendment that Mr. W. S. Slocum be nominated by acclamation. In support of his amendment he said that Mr. Slocum had been an able legislator and that the citizens felt a just pride in possessing the services of such a man in the General Court. If Newton could secure him for another term by a little urging, he thought it would be advisable to do so. He preferred not to serve another year, he added Mr. Goodrich, I think he would accept if nominated.

Mr. Samuel Farquhar said that Mr. Slocum told him that he would not, under the circumstances, allow the use of his name. Mr. Henry Ross thought it would be better under the circumstances, to withdraw Mr. Slocum's name and proceed to an informal ballot. The substitute motion was then put and lost. The convention then voted to proceed with an informal ballot, agreeable to the motion of Mr. Wade. Mr. Pickard presented the name of Mr. Frederick J. Ranlett, a member of the common council from Ward 4. He said that the first choice of the delegates from Ward 4 was Mr. Slocum and that for second choice they were united upon Mr. Farquhar. A bright young man who would ably represent Newton in the Legislature. Messrs. Bridgman and Tobnan were appointed tellers. Appended is the result of the ballot:

Whole number cast,	34
Necessary for a choice,	18
Henry E. Cobb had,	1
Frederick Ranlett had,	1
Frederick J. Ranlett had,	18
Dwight Chester had,	14

On motion of Mr. Wade, the informal ballot was made formal and Mr. Frederick J. Ranlett declared the second nominee of the convention. The convention then adjourned.

Grace Church Sunday Evening Lectures.

During the month of November Dr. Shinn is to deliver a course of lectures on "The evolution of man." The course will be made in this neighborhood, and how they have turned out. It is a very interesting fact that the vicinity of Newton has witnessed remarkable experiments in government, education, civilization and communism—Boston, Cambridge, Natick and West Roxbury were the scenes of these experiments. The lectures will treat of "The Settlement of Boston, The Founding of Harvard College, The Indian Missions of John Eliot, and The Brok Farm Experiment." The dates and topics will be as follows: Nov. 3, "The planting of a City after the model of a Hebrew Commonwealth." Nov. 10, "The founding of a College to perpetuate a religious faith." Nov. 17, "The conversion of a pagan race to a Christian civilization." Nov. 24, "The solution of labor and social problems." All the seats in Grace Church are free at night.

The Australian Ballot System.

The people of Newton will be interested to know that R. H. Dana, Esq., has consented to give a lecture explanatory of the new election law. The address will be made at the City Hall, Saturday evening, October 26. Further particulars next week.

California Correspondence.

OAKLAND, October, 1889.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC.
The great trees, in all respects,
Like pillars stand, "neath heaven's mighty dome,
"Would seem that, perched, upon their topmost branch
With outstretched finger, man might touch the stars."

Although the monarchs of our forests are not unknown to the world, yet the Californian must sometimes speak of these "plantations of God," as Emerson calls the woods, and bring to remembrance these grand vegetable giants of the Golden State.

No one can give a New Englander a better description or illustration of the height of some of these giants than did Dr. Stone when he said, "Place Bunker Hill monument in the midst of these trees, and lift over it a flag staff seventy feet high, from which flag the stars and stripes to the breeze, and the evergreen flag of the forest column would wave over that." The bark itself of one of these trees is often ten to sixteen inches thick and a man must take twenty-five or thirty steps to walk around some of the mammoth "Jumbos." There are giant knotholes, too, which can be literally crawled through. The house-room obtained within a hollow tree may be seen from several trees which have been used as temporary homes. In one so used fifty persons have found space for sitting at one time, and several hollow trees have been used for stabling horses. One can not easily jump upon one of these fallen logs, but it takes a good-sized ladder to scale the log and walk along on its huge back, thirty feet from the ground. Although the trees grow to such a great height yet the roots are not spread out to a great distance, neither do they penetrate the earth to a great depth.

There are other trees besides these sequoia gigantea which would be considered giants in any other state but California, especially in its twin brother, the Redwood, sequoia sempervirens, a remarkable tree for height and bigness. The latter grows more strictly in the Coast Range of mountains, while the former is limited, I believe, to the Sierras. The genus was named in honor of Sequoia or Seboyah, a Cherokee Indian, better known by his English name of George Guess, who was born in 1770 and lived in Wills Valley, Alabama, among the Cherokees. Sequoia became known by his invention of an alphabet and written language of his tribe. The alphabet consisted of eighty-five or six characters, each representing a syllable. It had come into use to a very great extent before the white people heard anything about it. The white missionaries after a time had types cast and a newspaper was started in 1828, partly in these characters. It is said that this alphabet is still in use by the few Cherokees left. But Sequoia's name will ever remain famous because of being connected with the vegetable giants of this state. The name of the genus was given by the learned botanist, Endlicher, a native of Hungary.

The Redwood attains its greatest perfection within the fog belt of the Pacific Ocean, being irrigated from the dense mists which often envelop the redwood forests in summer. The redwood is quite tenacious of life, as may be seen in the numerous sprouts which shoot up around the edge of an old decayed stump. The redwood is a most valuable tree for lumber, and has a very straight trunk, sometimes not branching for one hundred feet, when the tree is tall. Many trees have gone skyward from two hundred to three hundred feet, and the lovely green foliage makes this tree as remarkable for beauty as for usefulness.

As one wanders about among the forests in the big tree grove near Santa Cruz, it may be noticed that many of the trees grow in groups. It is evident on examination that these groups or circles now standing have sprung from the outer edge of still greater trees that have long since perished, and the standing trees have sprung up around the stump of the huge parent tree. In one of these trees called "General Fremont," the great "Pathfinder" had his headquarters in 1845. The "Giant" is a very large solitary tree, hollow at the base, in circumference sixty feet, and in height three hundred feet. There is a story, which I cannot vouch for, of ten hollow trees standing a few feet apart, some where between Santa Cruz and San Jose, which are used as a hotel. The largest tree is sixty-five feet in circumference and contains a sitting room. All about this tree is a flower garden and evergreens. The nine other trees are bed-chambers, white-washed or papered, and having doors cut to fit the shape of the holes. A "library" is also furnished, by the hotel and finds its place in a leaning stump.

Hop-picking time in California in September is considered by many families in hop growing districts as one of the pleasantest portions of the year. Then whole households sometimes leave their homes and camp for several weeks in the mountains. Some go for pleasure merely, others sit down and pick at their leisure, while many faster ten-pound gunny sacks to the neck, and with bands free, earnestly work for the shekels which are so handy to pay one's way in this world. The pickers receive usually from one to one and a half cents per pound. A good picker with nimble fingers can pick two hundred or more pounds per day. Sometimes young girls and boys can pick as many pounds as a grown person, besides getting much more fun out of the work. The earnest pickers usually stand up while working. The vines are planted six feet or so apart, and after climbing four or five feet to the top of the poles the vines then run on ropes which are stretched from pole-top to pole-top. When ready for pickers the vines cast a good shade from the hot sun. In large hop-fields there is an overseer or foreman, and the numerous pickers are known by number rather than by name. Young people from the cities often go to the hop-fields at this season of the year and manage to make a little money while taking their yearly vacation. The young and old as well as the children seem to enjoy hop-picking time, and look forward to it with pleasure.

It seems strange, when one thinks of it, to see the vegetable hop-family becoming such climbers, while the every-day beet-families and turnip-families have no such aspirations. The latter never wish to leap or walk, but are content to do humble duty in a lowly way. Perhaps there is not so much difference after all between vegetable and animal life as we are apt to think. Are there not human beets and turnips as well as human hop-climbers? And have the human and vegetable hop-climbers been more useful in the world than their lowly neighbors?

In Oregon also it is customary for whole families to engage in hop-picking during the season, living meanwhile in tents. Indians also encamp around the fields and engage in hop-picking. It is said that the "pole-pickers" there usually cut off the vines, before the hops are picked, then pull up the poles, and carry the vines to the various pickers. The hops are stripped off into boxes holding seven bushels each; expert pickers can gather from four to six boxes per day. The usual price paid pickers is forty-five cents per box. The hops are cured immediately in a building called a "drier." Afterward they are pressed into bales weighing 100 pounds and over, and are then ready for shipment.

PACIFIC COAST.

MUSICAL MATTERS.

THE SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

The first public rehearsal and the first concert of the ninth series given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which took place last week, were attended by audiences which completely filled every inch of standing room in Music Hall. And those who are fortunate enough to hold tickets for the season may, indeed, anticipate one of rare pleasure.

Naturally curiosity was directed particularly toward Mr. Arthur Nikisch, the conductor, who has signed a three-years' contract to succeed Mr. Gericke. Many good things had come to us from Leipzig, where Mr. Nikisch was holding the associate conductorship of the Gewandhaus, but it is greatly to be doubted if anyone attending the concerts last week failed to realize their highest expectations.

While Mr. Gericke was always acknowledged to be a most excellent drillmaster, and just the man needed to take the orchestra at the stage at which he found it, his autocratic ruling over the men, while securing a mechanical perfection of playing, was always hostile to the cultivation of any individuality among the players, as well as to that broad, free style which characterizes Mr. Nikisch's reading. Mr. Nikisch believes thoroughly in having each man bring out what there is in him, and gives great freedom to every part of the orchestra, particularly the brass, which has been kept so sub jugum for the last five years. The elasticity of Mr. Nikisch's reading was particularly felt in Meistersinger Vorspiel—traditional tempi were thrown to the winds—each note was brought out with unwonted clearness, and the result was the most magnificent rendition, and at the same time the most perfect one ever heard in Boston.

Mr. Nikisch has made few changes in the personnel of the band—the most important are the substitution of Mr. Hekking for Mr. Giese and a new 1st clarinet. Few changes have been made in the seating, also, the most important one being the massing of the brass and percussion instruments at the upper right hand corner. Mr. Nikisch's own estimate of the orchestra is that it is surpassed by but two in the world, the Gewandhaus in Leipzig and the Dresden orchestra, conducted by Herr Schuch. Under the direction of such a musician as it is evident Mr. Nikisch is, it should surely be a question of but a short time when our band will stand unequalled.

NOTES.

The program for the second Symphony concert, tomorrow evening, is as follows: Variations on a Theme by Haydn, Brahms; Concerto for Cello, in A minor, Godefranz; Overture, "Fingals Cave," Mendelssohn; Solo for Cello: Mr. Bach; Fraumerei, Schumann; Papillon, Poppo; Beethoven.

Mr. Anton Hekking will be the soloist. Mr. Francis Wilson and his company will begin a season of four weeks at the Globe Theatre, November 18, in "The Oath."

Mr. Albert B. Allison of Newton gave a magnificent recital last evening at the First Universalist church, Roxbury, of which he is organist.

The eleventh annual festival of the Southeastern Massachusetts Musical Association, will be held at Taunton on Oct. 22, 23, 24. The works to be performed are "Stabat Mater," Rossini; "Athalie," Hilier; "Erkling's Daughter," Gade; "The Creation," Haydn. Leading soloists engaged are: Mrs. Corinne Moore-Lawson, Mrs. Jennie Patrick Walker, soprano; Mrs. Carl Alves, Miss Alice Lincoln, contralto; Mr. G. J. Parker, Mr. F. W. Jameson, tenor; Dr. B. Merrill Hopkinson, Mr. Ivan Morosow, Mr. W. L. Whitney, Mr. C. E. Turner, bass. Blaisdell's orchestra will assist. Mr. Zerrahn will conduct. Miss Aus der Ohe, pianist, is also announced.

Mr. Arthur P. Schmidt, the well-known music dealer and publisher of Boston, has recently sold out his retail business to Messrs. Miles and Thompson, who continue the business at No. 13 West street, at the old store. Mr. Thompson was for a long time Mr. Schmidt's head clerk and has won many friends by his courteous and obliging manner. He will undoubtedly continue the success which Mr. Schmidt achieved. Mr. Schmidt carries on his wholesale and publishing business at No. 15 West street. Mr. Schmidt has made his reputation in Boston by publishing only the best class of music and by his ever ready encouragement of American composers; while publishing none of the worthless trash which so floods the market today, his catalogue already reaches large dimensions, including everything from leader to partitur.

NEW MUSIC.

The following new music has been received: From Arthur P. Schmidt & Co.: For piano-forte—Scherzino, H. Stockert. For organ—"Marche Heroique," F. Maxson. Vocal—"The Arrow and the Song," G. P. Ritter; "Oh, What Comes Over the Sea?" M. R. Lang; "A Brook Song," Fred Maxson; "Swallow Song," W. P. P. Longfellow.

A Ramble on Cape Ann.

From Gloucester the street cars run to Riverdale, and it is but a few minutes' walk to the wide, rolling country, plentifully sprinkled with rocks, known as Dogtown Common. As we stroll up the road, grassy lane, we can with difficulty realize that it was one of the ancient highways of the town—the shore roads are but modern affairs. The walls on either hand were built of stones gathered from its surface, but no attempt at grading seems to have been made. Some of the larger boulders are avoided by eccentric curves; it is a common thing for the one wall to start from a foundation much higher than the top of its companion, and ledges thread the close, velvety turf. It is perfection to the pedestrian, however, and it leads into a veritable wilderness in the midst of teeming villages.

Over the wall, our course zigzags of necessity, in order to pass between boulders, too large, or irregular in contour to be easily walked over, so thickly are they strewn upon upland and dale as far as we can see. Under the changing October sky,—now deep blue, now drifted with cloud-banks, cold and threatening, now soft as summer with silvery "mackerel backs,"—here is a wonder-world of color. Down in a hollow yonder a ray of sunlight makes a burning coil of the maple clump, and makes endless beautiful tints of crimson and purple among the green, and just beyond, the boulders are deep in violet shadows.

Here is solitude, but no desolation. One might wander here, day after day, and meet no one, unless by chance some solitary stroller like himself, to whom Nature is companion enough. "Sermons in Stones?" Not dull ones at any rate! Pause on this bit of ledge which the mossy turf has not been able to blanket over. Through its centre runs a dyke of trap rock, about a foot in width, and on either side, scarce half an inch wide, are numerous smaller dark veins in the light stone. In this yard or two of plain surface, written as upon a plate, is a long history. Notice how much is put in little space. Here is a "fault" illustrated, the black lines cut squarely across, are slipped to one side, leaving no trace of breakage; and here, in these cracks, showing the shrinking of the cooling trap, is the clue to the formation of innumerable chasms upon our New England coast, into which the Atlantic thunders with every tide. Harder than granite, the waves would beat upon it in vain, but that these cracks give easy hold. The larger dyke has advanced further in disintegration, and being much worn, the exfoliation is very plainly apparent.

Further up the slope a wide panorama is spread before us. Yonder is the Annisquam and the snowy bluff and beach, Ipswich, and Belknap mountains, (on Lake Winnepesaukee, a rosy violet against the stage.) On the other hand is Gloucester Harbor, and other glimpses of blue water are visible. We are glad to have our imaginings confirmed, that this rolling country, boulder strewn, with low shrubs dotted here and there, does resemble a bit of the New England coast. On the other hand of rose and bay, alder and witch hazel, be heather and gorse, and everywhere are thistles rosetted in the turf. Is it the salt mist drifting in over these hills that loads rose and black alder alike so thickly with scarlet fruit? How the mosses do revel here in summer weather! And here is one which has blossomed for us to-day, upon the one green shoot in the hip-laden tangle. We find a handful of dwarf laurel too, as rosy and blossomy as in June; and round a boulder's northern side, mitchella has woven a narrow band of glossy leaves and tempting berries. In the close of our party, and moisture; while its rugged protector's southerly face is far advanced in decay, fast becoming one of those coarse, red, gravelly heaps that look so much like anti-hills.

Most of these stones, we are told, are not great, but they are scattered or drawn down the slopes in the many "stone rivers," which we notice, by glacial action.

Down below us still remain the cellars of ancient houses, for the early settlers deemed the shore unsafe. The latest built and largest of these was built in the year of 1812, when privateers sometimes made unwelcome visits to our coast. Wandering over the slopes, we are confronted by a large, pointed boulder, with which we are very familiar. "I said 'stone river,' and you are not to be deceived," laughs one of our party. "That the glaciers had brought over the Matterhorn since July!" "Why, so it is!" cries another. "I'll go round on the Italian side and see if it is injured in the passage!" suiting action to word. But the sun is dropping lower, and we must also leave the shore, and descend to the dusty street, with its ragged tufts of catnip and tansy, and take our way back to the city. S. E. C.

Heifresses are so plentiful just now that the fact that a little Miss Sears of Boston, says the Epoch (quoting) to inherit the largest fortune of any American woman passes unheeded, but an amusing story was told me recently of the child, which illustrates the care taken of her disposition. She has not been allowed to know how brilliant are her prospects, but it appears that at the school she attends a young person expressed herself as "wishing she was as rich" as her little friend. Whereupon the mite, returning home, inquired whether she really was very rich. She was told that "so rich" that she would have a large fortune." The child pondered a moment, and then, brightening visibly, exclaimed, "All right! Then couldn't I please have a penny now?"

THE IMPROVED SYSTEM OF PROPELLING STREET CARS.

A new system for developing and utilizing steam for power, without smoke, clinders, noise or escape of steam, at much less cost than by any other known method for obtaining and maintaining power. There is no failure nor uncertainty in its operation, and it is absolutely safe. For street cars and other service requiring portable power, it has no equal. Secured by U. S. letters patent. A prominent mechanical engineer says that the possibilities of this invention have not been equalled by any recent invention—except possibly the development and introduction of this system throughout the New England States—which territory is owned exclusively by it—with a capital of $300,000—par value shares, $10—and is having a Power Car built by the Pulman Palace Car Co., which will be exhibited in Boston and vicinity in September. The first issue of certificates will be from the office of the company, 34 Broad street, after August 1. Subscriptions may be made for the stock at par—payable 25 per cent. cash, 25 per cent. 30 days, 50 per cent. 60 days—to an amount not exceeding $50,000.

Read the Best

Weekly Newspaper and Family Journal in the Country.

THE WEEKLY EDITION OF THE SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) REPUBLICAN, which was established in 1831 by Samuel Bowler, has recently been enlarged to 12 pages or 84 columns. The price remains at $1 per year, or 10 cents a month for shorter periods.

This generous enlargement, adding 22 columns to the capacity of the paper, allows the introduction of many new and attractive features. The news of Western Massachusetts and New England in particular, and of the world in general, is now presented in a more thorough manner than ever before. The news matter is not thrown together in promiscuous fashion, but is carefully edited and intelligently arranged.

The valuable literary department, for which the paper has always been famous, is made richer and more comprehensive. A sermon or other serious paper is printed every week, selections being made from the leading preachers of the various religious bodies, and often from the local pulpits of Western Massachusetts. The religious news and discussion of the day is also carefully reviewed.

A bright, entertaining and wholesome original story, and also an attractive department for young people, are regular features. Each number contains a good variety of original or selected poetry. The special interests of women in the way of education, work, household affairs, dress, etc., receive liberal attention every week.

Interesting letters from regular and occasional correspondents are more fully given than has hitherto been possible. The news of the theater and of outdoor sports is presented when interest and importance justify.

Agricultural news and hints for the farmers are carefully gathered and occupy more space than formerly.

The people's interests in all political, social and industrial affairs are steadily studied and advocated from the standpoint of independence and a patriotism that is higher and broader than partisanship.

In a word, the publishers seek to make The Weekly Republican more than ever the best weekly newspaper and family journal combined in the country.

To all residents of New England who do not take a daily paper, or who desire to supplement their daily reading by another presentation of the world's current history, accomplished by a choice class of general reading, the paper now confidently commends itself anew.

Former dwellers in New England and others everywhere who wish to keep informed of the life and thought of this region will also find the enlarged paper invaluable.

Send for a free sample copy. All subscriptions payable in advance. New subscribers for a year now will receive the paper until January 1, 1891.

THE FIRST RALLY.

The Republican mass meeting in Music Hall was a great success, and the audience was very enthusiastic. For the first rally of the campaign the speeches were unusually good, and Lt. Gov. Brackett especially proved that the Republican State committee need not have been afraid to have him meet Mr. Russell in joint debate.

Judging from the attention nearly every speaker paid to President Eliot of Harvard, his speech at the Democratic dinner is the great issue of the campaign. To argue, as some of the organs do, that President Eliot's words are of no importance anyway, and not worth replying to, and then devote the party's heaviest guns to the work of demolishing him, strikes the thoughtful reader as rather inconsistent. Judging from a purely party standpoint, it seems to us very foolish to attack or abuse President Eliot, because he happens to think differently from his former party associates. This is a free country, and any man has a right to express his opinions on public matters, if he does it courteously and conscientiously.

The Republican party is not ruined because President Eliot has left it, and it should be treated merely as an incident of the campaign. More will be lost than gained by magnifying it, and the great issues of the campaign still remain and the orators will find a discussion of them more profitable, than ridiculing a man who is fully as capable of forming an intelligent opinion on public affairs as men whose devotion to their party is not altogether disconnected in the public mind with their love of public office; when a man leaves his party for the sake of getting office in another, he deserves ridicule, but when he is impelled, by his honest though perhaps mistaken convictions, to leave his party associates, he should be treated with respect. President Eliot is not running for an office, and it will be a mistake to treat him as if he were. There are enough important issues at stake, to furnish a theme for all the campaign orators, and the fair presentation of them will make more votes than abuse of Mugwumps or Democrats. Besides, it is not wise to make it impossible for a runaway voter to come back when he finds out his mistake.

MR. J. R. LEESON of Newton Centre is chairman of a committee of the Home Market Club, which is undertaking to secure a reform in some abuses in the administration of the Custom Houses, and secure a more honest and uniform enforcement of the law. The object sought by the committee is non-partisan, and associated with them are such tariff reformers as Mr. Jerome Jones, of Jones, McDuffee & Stratton. There is no question but that a reform is needed, and that the interests of Boston suffer by the system of undervaluation practiced in New York. The undervaluation of officials were removed by President Cleveland, is one illustration of the need of such a reform, as under this it is for the interest of sugar importers to have all their sugar entered at New York. It is to be regretted that the demands of the New York machine politicians have induced President Harrison to reinstate the removed officials, but this is only another argument in favor of such a uniform law as is advocated by Mr. Leeson. With the wide variation in sugar tests and valuations at different ports, there is a great opportunity for corruption, and it would be for the advantage of the whole country to have this department of the government put on a purely business footing, and taken out of politics entirely. Mr. Leeson has given a great deal of thought to this question, and the object sought is such a manifestly common sense and business-like one, that the committee ought to succeed, as it is of the highest importance to the entire mercantile community to have the prevailing abuses corrected.

CONGRESSMAN MOORE of New Hampshire has been indulging in some sound talk on the spoils system, apropos of the choice of a postmaster for Nashua. He invited his Republican constituents to decide the question by a caucus, after the fashion of Newtonville, but the two Republican papers of Nashua, the Press and the Mirror, ridiculed Mr. Moore's course, and stood up for the spoils idea of giving the post office to the man who worked hardest for Mr. Moore. The Mirror finally reached the point where it badly laid down the rule that "the man who spends the most money and does the most work for his party and to promote the candidacy of a congressman should everywhere be appointed postmaster." Mr. Moore, who is the editor of the Nashua Telegraph, in reply, is equally emphatic in declaring his own position. "A more scandalous and pestiferous doctrine," he says, "was never uttered by anybody outside of a mad-house;" "carried to its logical results, it would reduce our government to a system of gigantic favoritism, intrigue and jobbery." Making a personal application of the matter, the editor of the Telegraph gives notice that, if he owes anybody anything for services in electing him to Congress, he would like to have the claims presented, and he will pay them with his own money, but that he "will not steal the public offices that are public trusts with which to pay them." Such sound doctrine as this is needed in these days.

YOUTH'S COMPANION gives some sensible advice to young and old, which is worth being reprinted in every paper in the country. It says: "Every man is interested in having a good and efficient government, but it really matters no more to him what are the politics of the person who handles his letters than it does what ticket his butcher and grocer casts. The country has been so long accustomed to the present system that most men do take an interest in the question who shall fill the petty local offices. The first thing to be done is to get rid of the notion completely and thoroughly. If the country is to have reform, it must come from the great mass of common, everyday folks, who cast their votes and represent public opinion. The Companion appeals to every man, and to every young man who will soon be a voter, to resolve that he will under no circumstances assist, by work or by signing petitions, in the removal of any person from a local office on account of political consideration."

THE Waltham Free Press stated recently that the Newton Aldermen gave protracted and patient hearings on police signals to the Municipal and Gamewell companies and decided almost unanimously in favor of the latter. Another local paper attempted to correct this last week, and stated that the Gamewell system was only "voted in by a vote of 3 to 2." This is so manifestly unfair to the Gamewell company that it should be corrected. The Gamewell system was adopted by a vote of 15 to 3, which was practically unanimous, as the Waltham paper stated, although it made the mistake of styling it the Newton board of Aldermen instead of the City Council. Our local contemporary, evidently fearful of offending the Gamewell company by its statement, tried to even things up by saying: "However, the Gamewell company will give us a good system and the people will be pleased," which is a very pretty example of an attempt to be on both sides of the fence at the same time.

THE Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal says, in regard to Senator Quay's demand upon the President that only his lieutenants should be appointed to office in Pennsylvania, that "President Harrison is to be no more influenced by bull-dozers in the North than he is in the South." This is good news, and we hope the President will live up to it. If he will only get rid of such advisers as Quay, Tom Platt, Dudley, and some others of the machine politicians, and call to his aid the best men in the party, he will add greatly to his popularity, and do more to secure a second term than any concession to the spoilsmeu could accomplish. The people are very much interested in civil service reform, and they only ask that President Harrison shall live up to his ante-election pledges, and by so doing he would give us an administration that would live in history.

At the quarterly meeting of the Mass. Charitable Mechanic Association this week, Mr. Edwin P. Seaver of this city was one of the speakers. He said he was a believer in the system of manual training. He briefly described his visit to the six schools located in St. Louis, Chicago, Toledo, Cleveland, Baltimore, Philadelphia, systems that have proved successful, and believed that in many cases instruction in mechanics could well be substituted for Latin and Greek. In several Western cities, engines, lathes, dynamos and other machinery had been successfully constructed by boys. It was the opinion of Mr. Seaver that what might be called a Mechanic Art School should be established in Boston. To this end he admitted the advantages which the Mechanics' building afforded, but it was a dream of his that the incomplete Latin School building might be remodelled for this use.

THE SPRINGFIELD REPUBLICAN still maintains its position as one of the very able and carefully edited newspapers. It never gives place to sensational or highly colored reports of scandals or to a supposed public demand for a low tone in news or politics, which makes it a welcome visitor to the family, when any care is exercised over the class of reading set before the young. For this reason the Republican's success is as creditable to New England as to its managers. The weekly edition contains the cream of what has appeared in the daily, and is a great convenience to those who wish to keep well posted.

THE Democratic mass convention, for the nomination of candidates for representatives, will be held at City Hall, Saturday evening. Mr. W. J. Follett, who has been spoken of, will not accept, and just to make it interesting the Democrats should nominate a good ticket this year, and find some good men who will accept.

THE metropolitan drainage commission is now fully organized, with a competent clerk, and an engineer selected after a careful search for the best man. The fortunate man is Howard N. Carson, who is highly endorsed by Gen. Walker and the best engineers. He will receive $6,000 a year, and is at once to proceed to a thorough study of details. The commission intend to push matters as rapidly as possible, and it is to be hoped that they will, for Newton needs sewerage.

THE Republican ticket for representatives contains the names of two good men, Mr. G. D. Gilman and Mr. F. J. Ranlett. The nomination belonged to Ward Four, but there was a very flattering effort made by this Ward to induce Mr. W. S. Slooem to accept another term. Mr. G. M. Fiske, who had been mentioned for the place, could not accept on account of his business duties, and Ward Four then presented the name of Councilman F. J. Ranlett, a rising young lawyer of the Ward.

OUR esteemed and always welcome contemporary, the Milford Journal, has been for some time laboring with the tariff question, and it asks such "United Question Club" conundrums as these: "If free raw material would be a good thing for the manufacturer, why would not free products, made from that free raw material, be an equally good thing for the poor man?" "Why should this eminent local 'tariff reformer' insist that reformation in the tariff should be like the handle to a jug, and altogether for the benefit of a 'favored class'?"

A GOOD deal of complaint is being made of the practice of burning leaves in the streets, which is against the law and should not be allowed. The fires frighten horses, and make it unsafe to drive about the city.

CANDIDATE HAILE appears to have captured the audience at the Music Hall rally and his speech was one of the great successes of the evening.

THE BOSTON COURIER publishes each Sunday an interesting society letter from Newton.

Dress Cutting College.

Some years ago it was deemed advisable and thought practicable by a number of Boston's philanthropic ladies to establish a college for dress cutting, in order that the young woman who is compelled to dress to support herself can find an excellent opportunity for doing so, where she can command as much salary as the average business man. Mrs. Harriet H. Brown's college for dress cutting has long been known and appreciated by a large number who have interested in the matter to investigate and they were pronounced excellent in every respect, as some of the leading houses in Boston were employing her students as cutters as soon as they received their diplomas and were fully qualified. So under the direction of Mrs. Harriet A. Brown as principal and Henrietta C. Matthews as manager, the college was established some time ago and on last Wednesday and Thursday an invitation was extended to the ladies of Boston and vicinity to call and examine the work which had been made by some of the pupils, and in point of fit and style they were inferior to none, many of the late and new styles having been made by the pupils. Some of the young ladies who are proficient have received flattering offers from leading firms throughout the country. Mrs. Brown can always be found at the college rooms, 181 Tremont St., Boston.

More Liquor Raids.

The police are keeping up the good work on the illegal rum sellers. On Sunday afternoon, Sergeant Haestis and Officers Harrison and Leonard raided the place of Thomas Farrell, Concord street, Newton Lower Falls, and captured a small quantity of the ardent. The house of Luke Nally and James Canfield, Adams street, Nonantum, were visited by the City Marshal, Sergeants Huestis, and Officers Conroy, Burke, Harrison and Leonard. At both places, a small quantity of liquor was seized. In court, yesterday, Farrell was convicted for maintaining a liquor nuisance and fined $50 and costs. He appealed.

Rev. Mr. Spaulding's Lectures.

Do the good people of Newton really know what a rare opportunity is offered them for gaining instruction by means of the Spaulding lectures? The lecturer is one of our own citizens, a gentleman of accurate and extensive information, and these lectures are the outcome of years of study and observation. It is hazardous nothing to say that there are no lectures more interesting and more fascinating than this course of Mr. Spaulding's. They are not sectarian in any sense, but thoroughly helpful. If there is an interest in this course, we only know to Newton people, there would not be a ticket unsold. I feel impelled to write this unsolicited note because it would not be creditable to us as an intelligent community to be ungrateful to a lecturer who brings such a wealth of good things to us, and whose character and ability add to the honor of Newton.

—Mr. Fred A. Ober delivered the third in his course of lectures in the Central Congregational church, Tuesday evening. He gave an admirable word picture of the West Indies, alluding to the habits of the natives, its rare contributions to nature's loveliness and many interesting details concerning its industries. The illustrations were very fine.

—Ephraim Douglass, the gateman at the Walnut street crossing, saved the life of a young man who attempted to cross the tracks in front of a train Tuesday evening. An elderly gentleman had a very narrow escape Wednesday afternoon. He crossed the tracks in front of an outward passenger train while an express was approaching on its way to Boston. Mr. Douglass tried to prevent him from passing, but he persisted and barely succeeded in going over the inward track just as the express dashed past.

—An alarm was rung in from box 26 at 1:50 o'clock Wednesday morning for a fire in the wooden dwelling house on Murray street, occupied by the family of Charles Irving. It caught from the stove, communicating with the woodwork and extending up along the chimney. The fire was extinguished by the fire engine. The chimney gave way and crashed through to the cellar and the fire then spread quickly. The building was completely gutted and is practically a total loss. The damage is estimated at $2000, partially covered by insurance. The inmates of the house were absent the night of the fire, hence it was not discovered until the flames had gained a head and it was impossible to save the building.

—Mrs. Abba Gould Woolson lectured Tuesday afternoon on "Granada and the Alhambra" in the Methodist church vestry, under the auspices of the Woman's Guild. She possessed remarkable descriptive powers and easily secured the fascinated attention of her audience. She paid a glowing tribute to the Spanish people, referring in her historical resume to Queen Isabella as a notable example of independent and courageous womanhood. The wonderful beauties of the Alhambra were portrayed by the gifted lecturer with true artistic appreciation. There was quite a large audience present including members of the guild and the West Newton Woman's Educational Club.

—A meeting of the Goddard Literary Union was held in the Universalist church parlors Tuesday evening. It was quite largely attended and the exercises were of an interesting character. The program was devoted largely to reminiscences of army life and especially to the events and incidents associated with the Battle of Gettysburg. The following gives the order of exercises: Violoncello solo, "The Weather," Mr. E. Bradshaw; soprano solo, Miss Emma Sibley; essay, "A Visit to the Field of Gettysburg," Mrs. Austin J. Sylvester; piano solo, "The Song of the Soldiers," Mrs. W. F. Kimball; recitation, Mrs. Andrew Wellington; baritone solo, Mr. Simon; reading, Miss Snow; soprano solo, Miss Atkins; reading, Miss Hattie Calley.

—Alderman Chadwick's firm is receiving great credit for its work in improving the Back Bay in Boston, and in utilizing their latest purchase upon Bay State Road promise to inaugurate some radical changes in house architecture. They have divided their land into 24 house lots, and already have eight houses well up. In these dwellings the kitchens and laundries are to be placed at the top of the house, above the freight and passenger elevator thereto, which will be run by hydraulic power. They will have a uniform depth of 50 feet from the rear walls to the rear line of the separate estates, and will thus extend to the rear 32 feet in width, which borders on Charles river. No L's or out-buildings of any description will be allowed, and neither fences nor sheds will be built in the rear, thus giving the effect of a park. The fronts are for the most part to be of brown stone. The first installment of houses will be completed by April, and will then be offered for sale.

—The caucus for choice of delegates to the representative convention and the election of a ward and city committee, Saturday evening, was largely attended and pretty lively in character. An attempt was made to divide the caucus into two sections, but it failed to materialize and the old members were re-elected with the exception of Mr. E. W. Bailey, who sent in his letter of resignation. Mr. E. W. Bailey was elected to fill the vacancy and was also elected a member of the new committee. The old ward committee received a handsome endorsement and took part in a large gathering of representative Republicans who evidently believe in the principles of civil service reform.

The position of majority of the Republicans of the ward, so far as the postoffice appointment is concerned, was intelligently presented by Judge Slocum. He said that when, under President Cleveland's administration, the Newtonville postmaster had been removed to make room for a Democrat, he had characterized the action as a violation of the pledges of the Democratic party in carrying out the principles of civil service reform. He hoped, therefore, that the Republican party would be more faithful to its promises and in no case remove an efficient Federal official except for cause.

—The course of illustrated lectures and entertainments to be given in the Unitarian church is one of the best ever given in the city. There are ten evenings in the course, which will be held at a very low price of $2.50. An advertisement in another column gives the names of those of whom tickets can be obtained and the details of the course. The plan is for the purpose of raising a fund for the purchase of a new organ, and a large number of tickets should be sold.

—The Newton Congregational Club will hold its first regular meeting of the season in the parlors and chapel of the Second church, Monday evening. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock, the usual social hour preceding the more material features of the occasion. The topic for the evening discussion will be "The Church and the Young Members," who are now pursuing their studies in our schools and colleges. Rev. George A. Hood of this city, field secretary of the American Congregational Union, will lead in the discussion.

—Mr. Loring Jones gave a concert in Nickerson's Hall, Tuesday evening, and a portion of the receipts went towards the building fund for St. Bernard's church. There was quite a large audience present and the program was thoroughly enjoyed. The artists comprised Miss Cora Watson, soprano; Miss Gertie Thompson, whistler; George Douglas, violinist; Moses Hodges, baritone; Fred P. White, accompanist; Miss Elvora Nahar, reader; Miss Nahar is a fine elocutionist and possesses unusual dramatic powers. She was a great favorite with the audience and was recalled several times. The concert was a most meritorious, the vocal and instrumental numbers being well rendered.

—At the meeting of Loyalty Lodge of Good Templars, Wednesday evening, a fine program was rendered beginning with the Triple Pledge, Juvenile Temple, and followed by recitations by Gertie Nicholl, Blanche Davis, Frank McIntyre, Mabel Cole and Stella Kimball; piano duets, Mrs. Rand and La Rand, Nellie Nicholl and Carrie Cole; songs, Belle Smith and Blanche Davis; reading, Belle Smith, and closing with a chorus by the Juvenile Temple. —Miss Nina Moore, daughter of Mrs. H. C. Moore of this city, and Mr. Francis B. WHITTON SEMINARY CLUB.

NEWTONWELL REPRESENTED AT ITS RECENT MEETING IN BOSTON.

Newtonwell was well represented in the recent meeting of the Wheaton Seminary Club in Boston. This club of ladies is composed of old students and teachers from the venerable institution at Norton, Mass., and gives its name to the association, although organized only a year ago it has already over 120 enthusiastic members among whom are many well known Newton social circles.

The meetings of the club are held on the second Saturday of each month, through the season, and include a business meeting at 12 m., luncheon at 1 p. m., with social and literary exercises beginning at 2 o'clock. The order of exercises for the latter portion of the day includes papers upon some interesting topic, followed by discussion interspersed with music.

The resident of the club is Mrs. Estelle M. H. Merrill ("Jean Kincaid" of the Boston Globe staff) and Mrs. Wm. C. Bates of Newton is a vice president and most active member. The headquarters of the club for the current year are at the Thorndike, on Boylston street, and the October meeting held there last Saturday was large and enjoyable, over 225 members being present.

The first item on the program was unexpected, and consisted of the presentation to the club by Mrs. Wheaton of a very beautiful little gavel for the use of the club. It is made from portions of one of the paddock elms and of the Old Elm on Boston Common. In the end of the handle is a polished bit of Plymouth Rock, and on the back is engraved the name of the club, which she presented to the club with appropriate inscriptions.

The gift was received with enthusiasm, and on motion of Mrs. Alice Hall Duff a vote of hearty thanks was sent to Mrs. Wheaton. Mrs. Susan Thayer Fox of Cambridge asked the attention of the club to the needs of the American school at Athens, which is about to undertake the excavation of the ancient city of Delphi, and the necessary funds can be raised. Miss Frances V. Emerson spoke of the excellent work of the school at Athens as observed by her in a recent visit, and expressed the hope that the club would aid the project.

Miss Mary J. Dudley of Wheaton Seminary. This program was preceded by a pleasant speech from Miss Heloise Hersey, the well known Newton student and lecturer, who has charge of the studies in literature at the seminary, in which she spoke of the noble work done by these older and smaller schools in the way of building up true womanly character. The chairman of the music committee Miss Ellen Louise Hopkins of Boston, provided some excellent music for the occasion also. Miss Marian Brown, who was known to many of the young ladies playing with the Symphony Orchestra has been so well received by Boston and New York audiences, delighted all present by her exquisite rendering of a "Nocturne" by Schumann, and the "Liedertanz" by Mendelssohn; while some charming mandolin solos were given by Miss Emily Boardman accompanied on the piano by her sister, Mrs. F. B. Boardman.

At subsequent meetings of the club the following topics will be discussed: Nov. 9, 1889, House and Home Papers; Dec. 14, 1889, Wagner and His Music; Jan. 11, 1890, A Rushing Excursion; Feb. 18, 1890, The Labor Problem and some Solutions; Mar. 18, 1890, Mission Work at Home and Abroad.

S. MYERS & CO.,

An Auburndale Artist.

Our townsman, Mr. Henry Orne Ryder of Auburndale, after nearly four years' absence largely spent in study in Paris, has returned, bringing with him various samples of his work. His first considerable painting was bought two years ago by Prof. Bragdon for the gallery at Lasell seminary. It was called "Anxious Moments" and was a picture of peasant life in Brittany. Mr. Ryder has continued his study in that section of France, familiarizing himself with the people and their ways, but giving more time to landscape than to genre painting. Indeed, he has been where the scenery is charming enough to be a continual temptation, in that favorite haunt of the artist, Aven, near the French land's end (Finisterre). Here winter makes little mark, never taking away all the effects of color, and Mr. Ryder's early spring pictures are in February. In contrast to one of these he has painted the same scene in the autumn. In the latter the trees are bare, and the atmosphere is colder, otherwise the two seasons are differentiated by very subtle distinctions, of which Mr. Ryder has the true artistic perception and enjoyment. Against a rainy gray afternoon sky with patches of blue breaking through stands a long group of low brown farm buildings, the cottage the out houses, and an out door oven in front of these are several large pollard oaks, a common feature in a region so poor that these trees must be trimmed for fuel every seven years. They and the chestnuts in the rear are thinly covered with the indecipherable leaves of early spring, delicate uncertain grays, purplish, brownish, faint yellow. What not? As path leads down through the gate, the stone walls are half hidden by a purple spike, or by gorse which spreads about freely. Ivy clammers and completely covers some of the oak trunks. It is a charming picture, and the same scene in autumn. It is a farm with an unpromising name, that one thinks may have come down from the old Druidical ancestry, like it save the absence of spring hopefulness and joy. It is the sigh of departing summer, an all-pervading ineffable touch of sadness, far less positive than our own bare November. For is not the gorse and the chambered ivy just as green in spring and the purple spike only a shade less bright? But though the sunset hour has been chosen one feels a lack of warmth, the brown of the buildings looks darker, the earth is harder and colder; in short the pensiveness of autumn is everywhere delicately hinted.

Mr. Ryder is a faithful observer not only of the indications of the seasons, and the varying caprices of the weather, but every picture carefully notes the hour of the day, the exact position of the sun and the phenomena resulting. He has studied lovingly the tender grays of the atmosphere, and comprehended their infinite variety, but he loves color none the less and several of his pictures are expressions of the power of sunlight against dark clouds; in one a shower has just ended, the sun breaks across the sky, the trees and gorse covered hill side are dripping wet and green in spring. Another landscape shows cottages standing in shadow against an after glow of sunset, mellow and clear, in which the new moon is faintly visible.

Fort Bloque has a charming stretch of broken uneven ground in relief upon a warm twilight.

A most successful bit of color, is a sketch made in February to show the sudden effect of sunlight; it is late afternoon, sky and landscape are very dark and a large rock increases the effect, the roadway is a deep purple, the distant horizon dark blue. As the sun comes, flashes that transmute all they touch to a golden beauty. It is sketched with a sharp decision. One sees the miracle. A sketch like that comes like an inspiration, but always as the reward of much patient study and plodding labor. One must wait for the mood many times before the mood of nature before he catches her secrets. It is humdrum work unless one can do it "con amore."

A small green picture is a little Breton girl who has come by a trailing foot path through the grass from the old stone-capped well with its virgin's cross. She has dropped her stone jar, split the water, and stands dismayed with hands outstretched, a pretty picture in her peasant cap and gown with her wooden sabots. The story is charmingly told.

Mr. Ryder exhibited in the Salon this year for the first time "Farm houses in Brittany," was the title of his picture. It was hung in a very favorable position, next to the most important rank on "the line." It was second. The first are usually those who have painted a long time. Pelouse, Jeubert and other masters regret that they have not efforts among the forty judges he lacked only three votes of receiving "Honorable Mention." This for a young work was great encouragement, and high reward for honest faithful labor. It is not too much to predict for him a successful career, since persevering and untiring labor cannot fail to produce increased results. Mr. Ryder has painted several American pictures since his return, and has been fortunate in selling several that he painted in France.

Vindication.

As the Rev. Horatio O. Ladd, formerly connected with the University of New Mexico at Santa Fe, has many acquaintances and friends in this vicinity, it will interest them to learn that he has been wholly and completely exonerated from the charges made against his administration of the affairs of that institution, which is largely supported by Northern contributions. The charges were made by E. Lyman Hood, and the Middlesex South (Congregational) Association gave color to them by suspending Mr. Ladd from its membership.

After a lengthy investigation, asked for by Prof. Ladd and accepted by Hood, conducted by the trustees, they acquit Prof. Ladd and completely vindicate him in their report of Sept. 17, 1889. A Santa Fe paper states that "Hood's efforts to injure Prof. Ladd have injured himself, the church, Santa Fe and the territory. His influence in the future is nil, while Prof. Ladd's reputation is clean and clear."

CHRISTIAN ROME AND ST. PETERS.

THE FIRST LECTURE IN REV. MR. SPAULDING'S COURSE.

Rev. H. G. Spaulding gave the first lecture in his course at the Channing church parlors Wednesday evening.

The lecturer said that the study of the rise and development of the Christian architecture, carries us back to the fourth century, when Rome, in the time of Constantine, became nominally Christian, and a new era of church building began. The model for these structures was found in the basilicas, or "meeting places," of old Rome. These basilicas, which, besides being the halls of justice, served also as a merchants' exchange, were described, and views illustrative of them given, first showing a picture of the restored Temple of Fortune at Pompeii, to exhibit the difference in the use of the pagan temples and the Christian churches, the former being for spectators rather than for worshippers.

A fine series of views given were those of the old basilica Jovis, connected with the palace of the Flavian emperors, and the same changed to a church with apse and chancel. These views also served to illustrate the change in architecture by which the Grecian columns were made to support the Roman arches. In giving views and descriptions of some of the basilican churches of the time of the Constantine, notably that of St. Paul's, the lecturer described the effect of a multiplicity of columns in giving an exaggerated appearance of space. In St. Peter's the eye has no such aid, and consequently the visitor to its spacious interior gets no adequate idea of its grandeur from a first view. On the site of the present St. Peter's stood the church which Constantine caused to be erected in the year 306, and was in size only exceeded by the cathedrals at Milan and Seville. The facade of the structure, crowned with the campanile towers was given. The old church was in the perfect form of the Roman Basilica, with its row of double columns on each side, and a nave of unusual loftiness. The intercolumniated aisles gave the impression of vast distance. In front was the atrium or porch, which appears to have been of considerable depth. It stood until the fifteenth century, when it was destroyed and the modern St. Peter's begun. One of the most interesting events in the history of the old church was the coronation of Charlemagne there in the year 800.

It was in 1450 that the new basilica was begun. Bramante was the great architect whose conception was first accepted by Pope Julius II, at the beginning of the next century, his plan including the great dome, the ground plan of the dome, Latin cross. Another great architect who followed later changed the ground plan to a Greek cross, and if his views had been carried out, would have erected a Mohammedan mosque rather than a Christian church. But in 1546 the work fell to Michael Angelo, who adopted the dome of Bramante and the Greek cross of Peruzzi, adding a Greek porch. The plan, however, was unfortunately not fully carried out.

Views of the great church from many points were given, and also of the interior. The first impression is one of vastness. The interior is so vast that one has at first no idea of distance and space, and it seems hardly larger than our modern churches. The view down the nave is disappointing, owing to the fact that the dividing lines between the aisles are three arches, resting upon massive piers. You have to visit the church again and again before you fairly become familiar with its vast distances. A view of the concave immensity of the dome was given, but it was impossible to convey by picture the wonderful grandeur of that dome. The ornamentation of the whole building is distributed as to draw attention from its vastness. It is a building that grows upon one the more it is studied, and like Shakespeare's Hamlet, and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, it reveals its meaning only to those who study its gradual unfoldings. Mendelssohn likened its interior to a vast forest. The lecturer gave an animated description of a walk over the building, and was enthusiastic in admiration of Michael Angelo's genius. Of the memorials in the church he gave pictures of the tomb of Pope Paul III, also of Canova's tomb to the exterior. He also gave the picture of Pope Clement XII, which he considered Canova's greatest work. He also gave the celebrated statue by Michael Angelo of the dead Christ in Mary's lap. In summing up the lessons to be drawn from a visit to the world's greatest temple, he adopted Hawthorne's words, that it is "the greatest of God's works, built by man, painted against God's loveless sky."

The next lecture on Wednesday evening, Oct 23rd, will be upon "Pagan Rome; the City of the Caesars."

Is it not sad to see so many young men every day of whom this can be said? Young men, take my advice. Stop all indiscretions which you have practised, keep good hours, retire early, and build up your shattered system by using Sulphur Bitters, which will cure you.—Old Physician.

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain or dread and with perfect safety. Try the remedy. It cures catarrh, hay fever and colds in the head. It is easily applied into the nostrils and gives relief with the first application. Price 50c.

Catarrh is in the blood. No cure for this loathsome and dangerous disease is possible until the poison is thoroughly eradicated from the system. For this purpose, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best and most economical medicine. Price $1. Six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at Arthur Hudson's drug store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. This trade is simply enormous in this valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Card of Thanks.
If the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam should publish a card of thanks, containing expressions of gratitude which come to him daily from those who have been cured of severe throat and lung troubles by the use of Kemp's Balsam, it would fill a fat-sized book. How much he ought to be able to call on any druggist and get a free sample bottle that you may test for yourself its power. Large bottles 50c and $1.00.

All persons having a Cough, or any Pulmonary disease, will be relieved by Dr. James M. Solomon, Jr.'s Cough Cure. 50 cents per bottle at all Druggists.

Coughing

Is Nature's effort to expel foreign substances from the bronchial passages. Frequently, this causes inflammation and the need of an anodyne. No other expectorant or anodyne is equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It assists Nature in ejecting the mucus, allays irritation, induces repose, and is the most popular of all cough cures.

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside. I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and cough. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively secure."—Mrs. L. L. Brown, Denmark, Mass.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it effected my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessary for recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother, Rockingham, Vt.

OMNIPATHY
Dr. C. A. GREENE

Has for 17 years been curing all the so-called incurable diseases of the body, by applications of non-poisonous remedies on the outside of the body (on the skin). He claims that drugs swallowed, such as quinine, arsenic, morphia, etc., kill the body instead of curing.

MARVELOUS.
Mrs. Dr. E. W. TAYLOR of 635 Tremont street, Boston, of the firm of Taylor & Colby, who has been a prominent practitioner for 18 years, a regular graduate, understands how to administer drugs as well as any other M. D. in America; and she has, with experience, exhausted all the remedies of the body by external applications for her own and lots of other doctors' skill. She was placed under Dr. C. A. Greene's charge on the 10th of April, and on the 10th of May she walked into his office and introduced herself; been sleeping naturally. He had not seen her before. He does not visit any patients, but cures all the affections of the body by external applications (on the skin) of non-poisonous remedies. (No drugs in the stomach.) No death among his numerous patients since Dec. 4, 1888.

Read his pamphlet of 44 pages containing most marvelous cures, sent to you free. Call and get it or send your name and it will be forwarded to you. His consultations are FREE.

No one was injured although a young man was thrown from a wagon with which the team collided, and there were many narrow escapes. One of the horses was badly cut, but they were finally secured.

—Rev. Mr. McCullough, pastor of the Baptist church, tendered his resignation last Sunday, much to the regret of the congregation. His action is due to ill health, as for several months he has been suffering severely from malaria, and the eastern climate does not seem to agree with him; he intends to leave Newton at once, in the hope that the change will be of benefit. He asked to have the resignation take effect next Sunday, and action will be taken by the church at the regular meeting, this evening.

—The Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Methodist Church will be celebrated next Wednesday evening at the church. Invitations have been sent to all the former pastors and many of them will be present. There will be a social gathering at 5 o'clock followed by a supper in the new rooms at 6.30, and the addresses will be made in the evening. The historical address will be made by Mr. H. J. Woods.

—The vesper service at Channing Church Sunday evening drew out a large audience, and the music was excellent. Some of the members of the quartet have changed since last year, but the singing is fully up to the high standard of previous years, and many of the solo numbers were noticeably good. Rev. Mr. Hornbrooke took for the subject of his remarks Jonah and the gourd, and the will of anger and complacings.

—The following leases have been placed through the agency of Charles F. Fard: The furnished house belonging to Dr. H. M. Field on Franklin street to Charles Cobb of Manchester-by-the-Sea; the furnished house on Richardson street belonging to Mrs. Eddy to Wm. J. Neff of Hingham; the easterly side of house situated on Eliot place to F. A. Hubbard; the northerly side of house on Emerson street belonging to D. R. Emerson to Mr. Titus.

—At the annual business meeting of the Eliot church, Tuesday evening, the action of the Sunday school in the election of officers was approved. Mr. Chas. Kepner was elected clerk, Mr. John Gilman was elected deacon, Mr. Frank Day, councillor, and for the other vacancies elections were made, but on account of declarations, the matter was positively settled. It was voted to continue the appropriations for benevolent purposes the same as last year, and the meeting adjourned subject to the call of the clerk.

—The free lectures of the Read Endowment will be given in November and December and it is hoped they will be given in Eliot Hall, if the present design of the committee is carried out. It is understood that the course of four or five lectures will be illustrated travels in Spain, Mexico, Norway, Rome and the Sandwich Islands. Fred A. Ober, who opens the course, has an acknowledged reputation as a lecturer, and his lectures will be of most interesting recollections in the lecture field today.

—Eliot church has raised $5,000 in response to the appeal of the American Foreign Missions Society, to be used in establishing new stations in the cities of Japan, where there is a pressing demand for missionary labor. It is given as a testimonial to God for His many blessings to them as a church and people by prospering them in the building of their new house of worship without debt and giving them united hearts in carrying forward the work set to their hands in this community.

—The Newton Natural History Society will hold monthly meetings, to all of which the public is cordially invited. The meetings will be held in Eliot Lower Hall, affording ample room for all. Wednesday evening, Nov. 7th, Dr. Frisbie will give the first of a series of four papers upon Planet Formation and the Life History of the Earth. There will be a new feature in the Reports of Observations from various members, C. J. Maynard, Geo. L. Chandler, S. E. Warren and others. The meetings commence at 7.30, and they must prove of great interest to students and intelligent people generally.

—Mr. Warren P. Tyler attended the reception given to Mr. W. H. Baldwin, president of the Boston Young Men's Christian Union, Monday evening. A fitting tribute was paid by Vice-President Sprague to the zeal, fidelity and success which has come to the union from the selection of Mr. Baldwin as president. Letters of congratulation were received from a number of prominent Newton men, including Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, Judge Bishop, Mr. F. A. Waterhouse, and Mr. John C. Chaffin. The cordiality of the evening was the presentation of Mr. Baldwin's portrait, painted by Robert Gordon Hardie.

—Mr. H. B. Coffin's store is noted for the attractive displays to be seen in the window, which are always worth looking at. The corner window is this week devoted to a display of Bent's crackers, of which Mr. Coffin sells a larger amount than any other grocer outside Boston. All the varieties are sold in the store, and the display is completed by a number of improvements in his store, and has newly frescoed the walls, believing in making it attractive for customers, and in this policy he is a pioneer. The Deerfoot Farm sausage have just begun to arrive for the season, and Mr. Coffin is the Newton agent for Deerfoot Farm products. See advertisement.

Associated Charities.
A full meeting of the new board of directors together with a number of friendly visitors met in the parlor of the Channing church, Newton, Saturday afternoon; Mrs. Hardie served as secretary pro tem. A letter was read from Rev. Mr. Hornbrooke, stating that he was obliged to be absent on pastoral duties and extending his sympathy to the work. Rev. Dr. Shinn read a letter from Mrs. Gov. Claffin, saying that both her husband and herself were ready to work with the society in any way they could; they both felt the need of just such an organization in Newton. The retiring secretary, Mrs. Frances Brigham, read a short report of the year's work. Twenty-nine families had been regularly visited and cared for. Many of them were now supporting themselves. Several were bridged over for the time being and in this way saved from becoming paupers. Help had been secured for the unemployed in several instances. Two liquor nuisances had been closed through an appeal from the society to the mayor of the city. One drinker had been so far reformed, through the constant visiting and advice, that he could now support his family, whereas they were formerly in mid-winter suffering and destitute because the man used his money for rum rather than bread. The object of the society is to elevate unfortunate humanity in a way that will enable them to maintain their self-respect; to give no money, save in pressing necessity, but to give sympathy, advice, influence, and help them to help themselves. The names of families are not to be repeated except among the members, nor even the repetition of a story which often recalls its source. In the truest sense of the word, friendship between the fortunate and the unfortunate is the aim of the association, knowing that the elevation of a single human being raises the average standard of the world.

—Mr. Mosman, the overseer of the poor of Newton, was present and spoke of the need of such a society. Mr. Mosman stated that from $12,000 to $14,000 were expended yearly in Newton for the poor, and that $8,000 of this was used for families outside the poorhouse. About four hundred people were cared for each year. Everyone in need could be helped by the city but they must be registered and consequently become paupers. The better way of managing emergency relief was interestingly and freely discussed. Rev. Dr. Shinn, Rev. W. A. Lamb, Rev. H. A. White, Dr. Baker and Mrs. Dr. Hovey taking a prominent part. Much interest was manifested in the need of this work and the better way of carrying it on. A committee on a constitution was appointed, consisting of Mrs. Dr. Hovey, Mrs. Mary T. Goddard, Rev. Dr. Shinn, Miss Mary Shannon, Mrs. Henry Harden. After electing the following officers to serve during the coming year, the board adjourned until Thursday afternoon, Oct. 23th: President, Dr. Mary C. Bates; vice presidents, Mrs. Dr. Hovey, Mr. Nathaniel Allen, Mrs. Lucius Pratt, Mrs. Henry Harden; secretary, Miss Margaret Worcester; treasurer, Mrs. Kate Meade.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE MEETING.

APPOINTMENT OF TEACHERS—ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT.

The regular monthly meeting of the school committee was held in the high school building, Newtonville, Wednesday evening. Mayor Burr, Messrs. Shinn, Drew and Dickinson were absent.

The following teachers were appointed: Blanche E. Henshaw, Hamilton school, at a salary of $500 per annum; Alonzo A. Weed, principal Prospect evening school, at a salary of $3 per evening; George S. Weed, principal in Jackson evening school, at a salary of $3 per evening; Miss Alice E. Macomber, teacher of mechanical drawing; Messrs. Stearns and Wilkins, assistants, at a salary of $2 per evening; Anna W. Burbank, assistant in the high school, at a salary of $800 per annum.

The annual report of the superintendent was read, accepted and ordered printed with the report of the school committee. In it statistics are given from which the following is taken: Number of persons in the city May 1, 1889, between the ages of 5 and 15, 4292; number attending the public schools, 3359; number of persons between the ages of 5 and 15 in private schools, May 1, 1889, 108; number not attending schools, 343; number of school houses in the city, 22; number of occupied rooms, May 1, 1889, 106; unoccupied rooms, 7; total number of sittings May 1, 1889, 4712; total valuation of school houses, furniture and land, $581,000; number of teachers, 106; whole number pupils enrolled, 1888-89, 4282, an increase of 70 over 1887-88; average percent. daily attendance, 1888-89, 92.4; average attendance 1887-88, 92; whole number tardiness, 1888-89, 3797, a decrease of 75 from the record of the previous school year; whole number of pupils enrolled in the evening schools, 1888, 191; average number attending, 115.

The report included the report of Miss Pond relative to the present method of teaching drawing and its results and alluded to the mid-year promotion plan as having proved generally satisfactory. It also contained a recommendation concerning the evening schools. The report was accepted and the recommendations contained in it referred to the appropriate committees.

An order offered by Mr. Barnard was accepted, appropriating $11,017.08 for department expenses of the current month. It was voted on motion of Mr. Hornbrooke, agreeably to the recommendation of the text book committee, to adopt Grimm's Maerchen, Otis edition, for use in the high school. It was also voted to substitute the text book, "Our World" for the previous edition entitled "Our World Reader."

The committee on salaries reported in expedient on the petition to grant the janitor of the Hamilton schools $15 for alleged special services. The report was accepted. A report of the same committee was adopted granting to Mrs. H. B. Wiswall of Wellesley the right to send her children to the Newton schools, provided a payment of $12.50 per annum was made for each child.

Mr. Hollis submitted the report of the committee on schoolhouses relative to the proposed school building at Waban. The committee found that there was a large number of children there needing school accommodation. Of the whole number, 29 children were under 10 years of age and at present were a mile from the school house. The report was accepted. It was accompanied by an order which was adopted requesting the city council to erect a two-room school building at Waban, so arranged that it could be readily enlarged when additional accommodations are needed.

Mr. Hornbrooke read a communication from Mr. George R. Coffin requesting an investigation before the full board of the action of the military instructor in the nomination of the commissioned officers of the high school battery. It appears that Mr. Coffin's son, a member of the second class last year, expected to become major, and failed to receive an appointment on the commissioned or non-commissioned staff. The committee was referred to the high school committee with full powers.

Mr. Hornbrooke presented a petition with 132 signatures representing the parents and friends of the pupils in the Bigelow and Underwood schools, requesting the adoption of the one-session plan of 4-2-1 hours, during the winter months. It was referred to the committee on rules and regulations.

The vote relative to the detention of pupils after school hours was reconsidered and amended so as to read: "Each teacher shall keep a record of all detentions after school hours of over 15 minutes, the same to be open to the inspection of the superintendent and members of the school board."

On motion of Mr. Philbrick, the recent action of the board relative to increasing the salaries of teachers in the 6th and 7th grades was reconsidered and the whole matter of salaries of grammar and primary school teachers by vote of the board was referred back to the committee on salaries.

Choral Service.
A choral service will be held at Eliot church next Sunday evening, October 27, at 7.30 o'clock. The regular chorus choir will have the assistance of Miss Gertrude Edwards, contralto, and Mr. T. M. King, tenor. Arthur W. Thayer, director. The following music will be sung:
"Ye shall dwell in the land," Stainer.
Solo by Mr. Thayer.
"O, for the wings of a Dove," Mendelssohn.
Solo by Mrs. Hubbard.
"The Soft Sabbath Breeze," Barnby.
"Therefore the Redeemed of the Lord," From the Redemption Hymns.
Solo by Mrs. Edwards.
"Hear My Prayer," Gounod.
Sanctus from St. Cecilia Mass., Gounod.
Solo by Mr. King.

Miss Edmunds.
Y. M. C. A.
The meeting last Sunday was led by Mr. D. E. Snow. It was largely attended. The remarks of Bro. Snow were full of good thought and inducement toward a better life, after which a few testimonials were offered. The meeting next Sunday, p. m., will be addressed by Rev. Mr. Lamb, of North Village church.

St. John in Newton.
Newton is to have one political rally at least in this campaign, for flaming posters have announced the past week, the coming of ex-Gov. St. John of Kansas to speak at Eliot Hall, next Monday, in behalf of the Prohibitionists. Judge Pitman will preside and everybody is invited to be present. Political meetings are so rare here that the hall will doubtless be crowded. Ex-Gov. St. John, whatever may be thought of his politics, is a very interesting speaker.

Protection an Insult.

"We have natural resources superior to those of any other country."
"We have the most energetic and intelligent class of workmen in the world."
JOHN ROACH.

In the GRAPHIC for September 13 an article on "Wages" closed with these words: "But protection is worse than silly, it is insulting. How?" It is but fair that we should answer our own questions.

In the halcyon days of Hamilton and Washington, when ninety-five per cent of our people were in agricultural pursuits and won a scanty living from the wilderness of trees and rocks, when the waters of the Merrimack hurried unhindered to the sea, when the Alleghenies still concealed their wealth of coal and iron, it was not unnatural that voices should be raised in behalf of protection. Wise men thought, wise men still think, that the new nation needed to shut itself out from rivalry with its matured and powerful competitors beyond the Atlantic. The present, they said, must be sacrificed for the future. Let us bear this heavy burden of ten per cent, for a few years until we are able to stand alone. They contended that the nation could become great only as its industrial foundations were broad. Infant industries must be protected; new industries must be established. Many a free-trader to-day believes that the early establishment and wonderful growth of our infinitely diversified manufacturing industries were caused in part at least by the Protective Tariffs of 1789 to 1832.

Whether the wise men then (and now) who held this opinion were right there, in it is not our purpose to discuss at this time. But we freely admit that Protection then was no insult. It came as an offer of help, when to accept help was no shame. As with a young man entering upon his business or professional career, so with a new nation beginning its life, both may be surrounded by powerful and long established rivals, both may need moral encouragement or even pecuniary help; and certainly neither would be ungrateful for the offer even if it seemed wise to refuse it.

So also, in time of war there could be no implied affront in extending unusual aid to those who helped to bear the burden of the war.

But 1889 is not 1805, and still less is it 1789. In 1789 we were young and weak, pitifully weak except in courage; in 1889 we think ourselves the strongest among the strong nations of the earth, strong in natural resources, stronger still in developed and diversified industries, strongest in self-reliance and almost infinite courage. In 1889 we were emerging from the darkest hour that a free people could ever know; in 1889 we are at peace with the world, united at home. Nothing indeed so pleases the Protectionist orator and the Protectionist press as to dwell long upon our greatness of empire—Greece and Rome and Carthage—where are they? The Hæmætic League, the Italian republics, the Holy Roman Empire, have they not passed away? And the giant of the modern world—England—even now her supremacy is passing away! But our shores are limited only by oceans. Canada is almost a dependency, Mexico a trembling ally. We have industries as diversified as our climate, riches of field and forest and mines already unparalleled though but partially developed. Our workmen are the most energetic, the most intelligent, the most inventive in the world.

Our capitalists are the most enterprising in the universe. Those foolish old Romans who thought so much of their trifling "Civis Romanus sum," could not dream of what it means to say—I am an American.

These we all applaud and are ready to listen to anything. So now follows the peroration somewhat like this:—

"In 1789 we were infants and needed 10 per cent. protection; now we are strong and mighty and need 50 per cent. Then we had no factories; now the land is filled with them and must therefore be filled with protection. Workmen of America, you need protection. Skillful as you are, energetic and enterprising beyond all others, fed, clothed and housed like the old world nobility, educated and experienced, how can you contend against the products of the world? The oppressed of Europe, the starved in China, the naked in India, the houseless in South America, the ignorant, the debased, the lazy, the unskillful—can produce more than you, yes, and better than you and cheaper than you! We will protect you against them. The quick eye, the strong arm, the clear head, avail you nothing;—the dull, the weak, the stupid can beat you at your own game every time."

That is the lie and the outrage that the apologists of the High Tariff meet the workmen with. And everywhere the workmen are turning away in surprise and indignation, saying:—
"If God has given us the best country in the world, the greatest opportunity for work, wiser heads and stronger hands than our brothers have, what cowards should we be to seek after an unfair and unnatural advantage against those already far behind us in the race for industrial supremacy. To ask it were a shame and a degradation for ever; to accept it were a lasting dishonor; they who offer it must disprove our intelligence and would trample our manhood under foot."

All the Americas.

The Pan-American Congress has called the attention of the public to the natural opportunities for an enormous commerce between the United States and the Southern Republics. It is being comprehended at last that we cannot enjoy the benefits of the immense So. American trade, now monopolized by England and Germany, unless we admit So. American products free from tariff taxes and send back in exchange manufactures made from untaxed raw materials. In other words, we must sell them our goods as cheaply as Europe—which cannot be done unless we have untaxed raw material to work with—and in payment for these goods we must admit their products to our markets at prices which will enable our people to use them freely. As evidence that this truth has forced itself into recognition at last, we quote this remarkable sentence from that inner citadel of high protectionists, the Boston Commercial Bulletin:—

"We should give the Mexicans a market for their raw products; their sugar, fibres and ores in return for a market for our manufactures, and we should do it quickly."

The entire article pleads for a removal of the duties on Mexican silver and lead ores. When these adjustments are made, a commerce will spring into existence that will send a thrift of prosperity into the remotest corner of the land.

At present the principal exports to So. America, Central America, Mexico, and the West Indies are oil, lard, lumber, fish, cotton, flour, and some varieties of hardware, like sewing machines. None of these articles move in liberal quantities and so far the balance of trade is all against us. We find from a recent report of the Bureau of Statistics at Washington, that in 1856 we sold to West Indies, Mexico, Central and So. America for these raw products the value of fifty-four millions of dollars, and received in return merchandise costing eighty-three million dollars, the balance in that year being against us twenty-nine million dollars or 53 per cent. But in 1888 the state of trade had become for us even much worse, for last year we exported to the same countries $3 million dollars, and imported from them 181 million dollars, a balance against us in 1888 of 98 million dollars, or 118 per cent.

If we consider the West Indies alone the case is more discouraging still. For in 1856 we sold to these islands 31 millions and bought 40, but twenty-two years later, in 1888 our exports had fallen to 28 millions and our imports risen to 72 millions. This is drawing from both spirit and bumblebee with a vengeance and such a revelation of the way our foreign commerce is going to the dogs should be a high tariff wall compels us to face, to the end that Pennsylvania may produce a dozen or two of Carnegies and Ohio may force upon the market some new fancy breeds of sheep.

(NOTE.—The official map of the Argentine Republic shows that that country has direct steam communication with England twice a month, with Germany twice a month, with Belgium twice a month, with France and Portugal twice a month, with Spain six times, and with Italy four times, but no direct communication with the United States. The United States Consular report for 1889 gives other interesting statistics concerning the Argentine Republic. During the year 1887, for example, not one steamer bearing the flag of the United States was seen upon the River Plate, and yet during the same twelve months 2546 English steamers arrived there. Of French steamers there were 424, of German 161, of Italian 95, of Belgian 2, of Spanish 30, and of Norwegian 6. Charity that begins at home frequently stops there; and in our desperate attempts to foster home commerce we have completely destroyed our trade with the world. When Norway, Spain and Italy are doing us in South American commerce, it is about time to stop talking about the "effete monotony" of the old world, and consider the possible effectiveness of the great republic of the new world.)

Our Foreign Shipping.

We are tempted to add just a word to the above article in order to show that the "Flag" is as rarely seen in European waters as it seems to be in those of South America. In constructing the following table from our Consular Reports we have purposely omitted English and have chosen three sea ports to represent the trade of Southern, of Western, and of Central Europe. It will be noticed that Austria is the only power of any note that can be compared with us in the microscopic character of its shipping interest. Austria has but one decent harbor; the United States used to have hundreds. But here is the table. Column one shows the nationality of the vessels; column two shows how many vessels of said nation entered during the year 1887, at the port of Valencia in Spain; column three shows the similar fact for Antwerp in Holland; and column four the like for Bremen in Germany.

The Duties on Wools.

(From Wade's Fibre and Fabric.)

If we understand the position of Judge Lawrence, he favors such a change in duties as will encourage the Ohio farmers to give up the raising of merino sheep, a business they have learned, and go into the growing of coarse carpet wools, in competition with countries of the least resources, and people the poorest paid on this globe. In other words, after nearly destroying the manufacture of fine woollen cloths in this country by a prohibitory duty on the greater portion of the raw materials of the world necessary for their fabrication, he would have Congress now turn its attention to the carpet mills, and subject them to the same operation. This is giving away the fact that a duty on fine wools which will average more than 100 per cent. has not served to make the business profitable to the Ohio farmer. How much duty will it require on these carpet wools to induce the Ohio or any other farmer in this country to go into the raising of sheep that produce only a very ordinary carcass for food and a fleece the poorest of all grades in nature? But if this change could be brought about, after this wool is raised, what can be done with it? If the prices are higher than now, the carpet manufacturers cannot afford to buy it, and certainly the manufacturers of clothing fabrics will prefer something better and cheaper. If the price of carpet wool is not to be increased by the increase of duty, what is the use of making such a change?

Expert Testimony.

"Is there anybody from Vermont in the car?" asked the conductor, opening the door and letting in about forty-two rods of Western blizzard.

"I be," responded a tall, lank individual, rising up in a seat next to the stove. "Well, if you will be kind enough to come forward into the Pullman car," replied the conductor, "there is a lady there who has got her spruce gum mixed up with a paper of resin, and she wants an expert to separate them."—Burlington Free Press.

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAPHIC

THE REPRESENTATIVE CANDIDATES.

There never was such an excellent supply to choose from as is furnished by the Newton representative candidates this year. The Republicans offer Mr. G. D. Gilman, who has served one term with great credit to himself and the city, and Mr. F. J. Ranlett, who was elected councilman from Ward Four to succeed Mr. Gore, and is a rising young lawyer. He has given faithful attention to his duties and is a worker rather than a speaker.

The Democrats have nominated Mr. W. S. Hutchison of Ward Seven, who has attracted attention as one of the bright and able young lawyers of Boston, who is an excellent speaker and a regular reformer. The second candidate is Mr. E. S. Merchant of West Newton, one of the solid business men of Boston, whose character and reputation are of the best.

The Prohibitionists have put up two clergymen, Rev. W. H. Cobb and Rev. F. F. Davidson, who are excellent men and willing to accept a call to the legislature if their fellow citizens so decide.

Generally the mere fact that a candidate's name is on the Republican ticket, is sufficient to elect him, but this year the Australian ballot system will come in to complicate matters and voters who look over their tickets to pick out the best men, of whom there are many in Newton, will find themselves seriously embarrassed to make a decision. Those who take their politics straight will of course have no trouble, as they can go by the label. Whether the new ballot law will make any difference in the result is doubtful. Newton is not a factory town, with the head of a big corporation to please, and the Newton voters have always been used to follow their own inclinations, without fear or favor. For this reason, no great change is looked for here. It is unfortunate that we cannot go back to the old-fashioned town meeting days, and have a declaration of principles from each of the candidates, or else a joint debate, so as to infuse a little liveliness into this very dull campaign. The Prohibitionists are the only ones who have taken the trouble to get up a rally, while the other parties appear to have exhausted themselves in making their nominations. No one would think from present appearances that the election is only ten days distant.

Melrose has suddenly become famous by means of its lively caucus, at which Speaker Barrett managed to secure a renomination. His managers are being rather harshly criticised for putting off the caucus till the last possible moment, as it looked like an attempt to prevent any opposition candidate from being nominated. When the new ballot law was adopted it was urged against it that the wicked Democrats would resort to this maneuver, and it is very sad to find Mr. Barrett is the first to offend. Nevertheless the plan was not successful, as an independent candidate secured the requisite number of signatures and will have his name on the ticket. The caucus was a lively one, and Mr. Barrett was charged with a failure to look after the interests of the town in the last legislature. His friends urged that it was a great honor to have their representative chosen speaker, but it was said on the other side that "the honor to the town depends on whether the office is honorably filled," which was a very palpable hit. The discussion must have been very interesting to Mr. Barrett, who was present at the caucus, one of the speakers going so far as to call him "the laughing stock of the House." The Record, Mr. Barrett's paper, says that the people of Melrose are "amused" at the "stories" of the caucus which appeared in the Boston papers, and declares that it was the largest, most enthusiastic and harmonious caucus ever held in Melrose. All the same, whether Mr. Barrett is elected or not, it is to be hoped, for the reputation of the next legislature, that some other man will be elected speaker, who will be able to preside over the House with dignity, and who will command the respect and confidence of the members and the people. There is no question but that Mr. Slocum or any of the other candidates would have made a more successful presiding officer. The next legislature should select its best man for speaker.

The trial of the Auburn druggists is reported in full on the sixth page. The employment of "spotters" is an unfortunate feature of the case, as it prejudices the people against the movement to have the law strictly enforced. On their own testimony they are hired to worm themselves into the confidence of the druggists or their clerks, and out of friendship to stretch a point in their favor, when they turn and give evidence against them. The evidence is inconclusive, as this may have been the only case in which the law was violated, and the druggist may have always kept a strictly reputable place, refusing to sell to any one except those who needed it as a medicine. An ordinary detective does not induce a man to commit crime in order to convict him, and this is the difference between him and the "spotter." The latter's trade is not a reputable one and most people look on him with pitying contempt. The people of Newton are in favor of having the liquor law strictly enforced, and the case of the Newton Centre druggist shows the better way of putting a stop to illegal selling. Prominent citizens took the trouble to appear before the board of aldermen, established the fact that the place had a bad reputation, and the license was withdrawn. The same remedy is open to all the citizens of the city, and public sentiment will approve of such action, and endorse the stand taken.

Mr. DAVID HALL RICE of Brookline is writing a serial in the Boston Journal, descriptive of the total ruin which would follow the granting of the petition of Governor Ames, Hon. Peleg McFarlin and other prominent manufacturers, for a reduction of the duty on pig iron. Mr. Rice's theories are so beautifully constructed and so convincing, that we wonder that Governor Ames and Mr. McFarlin and the other iron manufacturers do not hire him to run their businesses. Even if there was a big deficit at the end of the year, he could convince them that it was the facts and not his theories that were wrong. Such good business men as the two prominent Republicans above mentioned certainly ought to be allowed to know something about their own business, and what would benefit it.

THE Newton Street Railway company have evidently exhausted the good nature of the board of aldermen, and it was announced Monday night that no more concessions would be granted. The company are not to be blamed, in a business sense, for getting all the concessions they can obtain, but it is not always safe to attempt to ride a free horse too hard. The horse might develop some unexpected and unpleasant qualities. The company have done the best they could for their stockholders and they can now go ahead with a clear conscience.

We have received a letter from Herbert Myrick, President of the Mass. Farmers' league, calling attention to the need of a law to prohibit coloring, also to imitate butter, with the statement that the farmers propose to elect a governor and legislature which will enact such a law. The league has some 30,000 members, and is naturally rather coddled by the candidates.

The Harvard Senior class have gained well-merited approbation by the election of a colored student for class day orator and this is also a refutation of the cheap talk of which so much has been published in certain quarters about Harvard snobbishness. Among the young men there assembled it is brains and character that tell, as is proved by such occurrences as this.

The lecture of Richard H. Dana, Esq., at City Hall, Saturday evening should be attended by every voter who wishes to understand the Australian Ballot system. Mr. Dana will explain the law and illustrate its practical workings. No admission fee will be charged, and all voters without regard to party are invited to be present.

PAGAN ROME.

CLASSIC RUINS AND HISTORIC MONUMENTS—THE CITY OF THE CAESARS.

There was a notable increase in the audience at the Channing church parlors, Wednesday evening, and the lecture was very enjoyable.

"We find in Rome," said the lecturer, "the relics of 2,000 years. It is, as George Eliot well says, 'the city of visible history,' and the new science of historic archaeology deciphered and interprets for us the old monuments which we shall have pictured on the screen. Speaking of the aqueducts, Mr. Spaulding said that while water was brought to Rome by underground pipes, the aqueducts were constructed to give employment to the thousands of slaves and also to beautify the approaches to the city. They were of various lengths, one extending for sixty-three miles. The pipes were of Roman cement, which remains to this day as hard and as solid as adamant. That the current might not tear down the masonry, the structures were made of great strength, and occasionally sharp turns were taken to check the force of the flow. The daily supply was about 336 gallons to each individual; every house had its bath, and there were hundreds of public fountains. The chief draft was to supply the immense thermae, or public baths, the largest of which are now known as the baths of Caracalla. The grounds were as large as Boston Common, and the building was two-thirds the size of the main building at the Philadelphia world's fair. The whole is a chaotic heap of ruins now, its appearance suggesting to a traveller the simile of 'a town meeting of ruins without a moderator.' These baths were free to any citizen who possessed the smallest Roman coin, and were art-galleries, public libraries, club-rooms, gymnasiums and reading-rooms all in one. The swimming tank of the great baths accommodated perhaps 3,200 bathers at once. It was a luxury which could be enjoyed by the poorest citizen in Rome on payment of half a cent, and where the beggar and the emperor met on equal terms.

The triumphal arches were next taken up. The first view showed the arch of Septimius Severus at the foot of the Capitoline hill. In contrast with this arch a view of the Thesaurus was shown, and it was pointed out the columns of that famous Greek temple were at the same time the principal elements of its construction and of its decoration. Several other Roman arches were illustrated and described; and a restoration of one of these arches was shown, in connection with which the lecturer gave a detailed description of a Roman triumph.

The Roman temples were next considered, the remains of some of the most famous of them illustrated and described, and the peculiar features of the old pagan religion which these temples represented were discussed. The lecturer next discussed in detail the ruins and monuments of the Roman forum. The first view showed the forum as it was at the time of the great jubilee of 1650, when the soil was on a level with the surrounding streets, and only the tops of arches and half of columns were visible above the ground. The next one was a view of the same spot from north to south as it appears in 1879, and then came a picture giving a view of the forum as it is thought to have appeared in the days of its splendor. Other views followed in which the entire extent of the forum was laid bare, and a clear idea was given of the present conditions of this heroic spot and of the ruins the remains, and then, in the restoration views the audience saw these stately buildings and temples start up again with all the architectural magnificence of the imperial age.

The last view was a splendid restoration of the Forum as it appeared in the days of the Caesars. In such scenes, said the lecturer, the imagination easily takes fire, and we can easily understand what Balzac meant when he said, 'If I sit and dream an hour in old Rome I am learning more than if I studied a whole month anywhere else in the world.'

The next lecture on the interesting subject of the amusements of old Rome will be given on Wednesday evening, Nov. 6th.

Miss GRACE L. LEMON,

THOSE AUBURNDALE DRUGGISTS.

THEY ARE FOUND GUILTY OF MAKING ILLEGAL LIQUOR SALES.

Quite a breeze of excitement stirred up the usual quietness of the city last Saturday afternoon, when it became known that warrants had been served on Messrs. Elliott Keyes and Alfred Brush, on complaint of Myron L. Henry, representing the Auburndale Law and Order League, for the alleged illegal sale of liquor. It was rumored that this was but the beginning of a war to be waged against nearly all the druggists of the city and although these were the only cases in which Mr. Henry was interested, it is believed that other branches of the law and order league in this city contemplate more prosecutions. The evidence was procured by spotters, agents of the Massachusetts Law and Order League, and hired from that organization by Mr. M. L. Henry.

The cases against Messrs. Keyes and Brush came up in the police court Monday morning before Judge Kennedy and a large gathering of interested spectators filled the court room, quite a delegation of ladies and gentlemen from Auburndale, interested in the temperance cause, being among the number present. The defendants were represented by Mr. John B. Goodrich and Mr. W. S. Siocum appeared as counsel for the Auburndale league.

After the government witnesses were sworn, Mr. Cates of Charlestown, one of the agents of the Massachusetts league, took the stand. He said: I first went into Mr. Keyes' store previous to the 23d of September. On Sept. 23, I purchased from Mr. Keyes one-half pint of whiskey for which I paid him 30 cents. I did not present a physician's prescription, neither did I sign for it, and I did not purchase it for medicinal use. I also purchased whiskey from Mr. Keyes Sept. 24, Sept. 28 (Sunday) and Oct. 3, each time in small quantities. Was not required to present a prescription or sign for it. On one or two occasions, I purchased cigars. The whiskey was delivered to my residence on one occasion agreeably to my order. On Sunday, when in Mr. Keyes' store I saw two young men go behind the counter. Soon after I heard the word "whiskey" and could hear the glasses jingling.

On the cross examination by Mr. Goodrich, Mr. Cates said: I am a resident of Charlestown, and an agent of the Massachusetts Law and Order League. Mr. M. L. Henry of Auburndale hired my services through the Massachusetts league, paying to that organization for the same $5 per day while I was employed. I receive a stated salary for my services which depends in no way upon any convictions that may result from evidence that I may procure. "Did you not," said Mr. Goodrich, "employ your professional skill to induce Mr. Keyes to sell you the liquor for the purpose of betraying him?"

Mr. Cates: "I did; although I believe most anybody could have done so." Mr. Goodrich: "Why did you not attempt to purchase liquor the first time that you visited Mr. Keyes' store?" Mr. Cates: "I felt that I did not know Mr. Keyes well enough."

Mr. Goodrich: "You desired to obtain his confidence first?" Mr. Cates: "That was my object."

Mr. Goodrich: "Then your business, as a matter of fact, is to induce illegal sales by duplicity, obtaining the confidence of the proprietor of the store, accomplishing your purpose and then betraying him."

Mr. Cates: "Yes, I am expected to do that in order to secure the evidence. The end justifies the means."

Mr. James Holly of Boston, also an agent of the Massachusetts league, was the next witness. His testimony proved the delivery of a bottle of whiskey from Mr. Keyes to Mr. Cates on Oct. 3.

Mrs. C. G. Tinkham was next called. Mr. Siocum: "Have you ever been annoyed by people passing through your rear hall into Mr. Keyes' store?"

Mrs. Tinkham: "I never experienced any trouble from that source." The government rested its case at this point. Mr. Goodrich then summed up for the defendants, deprecating the method of employment of spotters to secure testimony. The police department in this city, said Mr. Goodrich, is doing good work in enforcing the liquor law and it is naturally the proper province of such cases. Investigations are always made upon complaints setting forth illegal sales by any druggists of the city. One citizen of the city has taken upon himself the work of the police department and he is supporting the evidence of hired professional confidence men.

The court has discretion in such cases. If the complaint was made for personal motives, then the court will find the defendant not guilty, although there has been a technical violation of the law. The evidence in all of the cases named, the whole fabric of the case resting upon the testimony of two professional spotters, unsupported by any other corroborating evidence. The business of these professional spotters is certainly a disreputable one and their evidence is hardly worthy of a state trial. Mr. Keyes continues to conduct his business to the satisfaction of the authorities and citizens, he should be allowed to continue to do so whether Mr. Cates of Boston is satisfied or not. Not a particle of evidence has been submitted to show the bad character of the place.

Mr. Siocum, in summing up for the government, said that so far as the police department was concerned, its officers were debarred from entering the apothecary stores and making seizures as in other cases. The apothecaries were protected by their license. A citizen of Auburndale had, therefore, come forward and complained of Mr. Keyes for maintaining a liquor nuisance. The evidence was undisputed that Mr. Cates had purchased liquor from Keyes 4 times. No prescription had been presented and he had not signed the receipt book, agreeably to the conditions of the law.

Judge Kennedy said there was a lack of evidence showing that the place was a nuisance. The testimony, however, he added, shows clearly that the law has been violated and I must, therefore, find the defendant guilty and order him to pay a fine of $50 and costs.

The case against Mr. Brush was then taken up. Mr. Cates testified to the purchase of whiskey from F. F. Francis, Mr. Brush's clerk, Sept. 23, 24 and 27 and Oct. 3. He did not sign any receipt or druggist's book, neither did he present a prescription on any of the dates named. Mr. Holly's testimony proved that a delivery of 1-2 pint of whiskey had been made by Francis to Cates Oct. 3. Mr. George Mann testified that F. F. Francis was employed as a clerk in Mr. Brush's store. The testimony regarding Francis was corroborated by Mr. M. L. Henry, the complainant, president of the Auburndale law and order league. The court discharged Brush and found Francis guilty of a violation of the druggists' license law. The fine of $50 and costs was imposed. An appeal was taken in each case and bonds furnished for the appearance of the defendants for trial in the superior court.

AUCASSIN AND NICOLETTE.

(An Introduction.)

BY F. W. BOURDELLOUX.

What magic halo rings thy head,
Dream-maiden of a minstrel dead?
What charm of faerie round thy hovers,
That all who listen are thy lovers?

What power yet makes our pulses thrill
To see thee at thy window-sill,
And by that d'angerous cord down sliding,
And through the moonlight garden gliding?

True maiden art thou in thy dream;
True maiden in thy window-sill;
True maiden when thy feet are over-
Thou lingerest to try thy love.

And ah! what heart of stone or steel
But doth some stir unthought of feel,
When, to the day new brightness bringing,
Thou standest at the stair foot singing!

Thy slender limbs in boyish dress,
Thy tones half glee, half tenderness,
Thou singest, 'neath the light lace's cover,
Of thy true love to thy true love.

O happy lover, happy maid,
Together in a story laid!
Forgive the hand that hath been boring,
Your old loves for new lovers' staring!

Yet, Nicolette, why fear'st thou fate?
Nicolette, why can't thou touch thy name,
Nor sendal's self a fault discover,
Though each new year thou hast new lovers.

Nor, Aucassin, need'st thou to fear
These lovers of too late a year,
Nor dread one jealous pang's revival—
No lover now can be thy rival.

What flower considers if its blooms
Light haunts of men or forest glens,
What care e'er thence, O flower of lovers,
Thou wilt have of love, O flower of lovers!

CHRYSANTHEMUM.

A QUAIN CHINESE FLOWER-LEGEND.
(Translated from the French of Gen. Tchong-Ki-Tong for The Springfield Reformer.)

The chrysanthemum is one of the favorite flowers with the inhabitants of the Celestial empire, and numerous poems have been inspired by its charming colors. The most celebrated is a piece by a man of letters named Tao-Yen-Ming, who worshipped this flower and who expressed his feelings of adoration in verse about the fifth century. A thousand years later this passion found another devotee in the person of Ma-Tse-Tsue, of Petchili, who was ravished with the plant to such an extent as to nearly ruin himself in collecting specimens of all the varieties. A friend from the province of Nanking had come on a little visit to our amateur and informed him that one of the friend's countrymen possessed several species of chrysanthemum which did not exist in the northern countries. This news sufficed to animate the dominant passion of Ma-Tse-Tsue, who set out immediately to go and see these rarities. He succeeded in finding two plants that he did not possess before, and which he brought back in triumph.

On the journey home he met a young man who was traveling in his own carriage; the distinguished manner of this traveler attracted the sympathy of Ma-Tse-Tsue, who soon found occasion to enter into relations with him. The conversation, general at first, soon turned on botany; Ma-Tse-Tsue was only too happy to relate why he had undertaken his journey, and to exhibit his horticultural trophies. Then the young man told him that all plants could be made to grow to an extraordinary height and to become very beautiful by means of a particular sprinkling-water, of which he alone possessed the secret.

Charmed at the meeting, Ma-Tse-Tsue inquired of his new friend where he was going.

"My sister does not like the air of Nanking any longer; we are now going to live in the north."

"I am poor," said Ma, "but my cottage is nevertheless large enough for me to divide with you. If you will condescend to accept of this rustic hospitality you will have no need to seek another dwelling-place."

The new friend, who gave his name as Tao, would not immediately accept this proposition, but wished first to ask the consent of his sister. She, until then concealed in the carriage, showed, upon speaking to her brother, a most charming countenance; she was a young girl of about 20 years; she thought best to accept.

"I do not fear the limited room in that place," said she aloud, "if there be a large garden."

They at once took their way to Ma's home, and he lodged his guests in an adjacent cottage which was situated in a large park, all planted with innumerable chrysanthemums. As soon as the installation was effected the brother and sister busied themselves in watering plants, and these soon manifested a marvelous development, and even after having once been dead returned to life so soon as they were replanted and watered with the mysterious liquid. In the moments of leisure the brother came to drink wine with his host, and the sister helped Madame Ma with the needle.

"You are not very rich," said Tao one day to his friend; "and we increase your expenses still more; this situation cannot continue long, we must find means to overcome our limited circumstances. I propose you that we sell some chrysanthemums; will you engage in this business?"

Ma loved his flowers more than all else and the spirit of speculation was odious to him. He replied that if he had had so much esteem for his guest it was because he had believed him as ardent a lover as himself, and that, moreover, his poverty did not trouble him so long as he could indulge his passion. The proposition to sell flowers appeared to him unworthy of the inhabitants of this beautiful garden, which he would never consent to transform into a market.

"Follow me," said Ma, "and you will see that I am not unworthy of the philosophers," said Tao; "and selling flowers is no vulgar commerce. I understand that one

"Gen. Tchong-Ki-Tong, the eminent Chinese diplomat and author, long a resident of France, first attracted attention by his keen criticism of European affairs and manners. The book 'Notes Chinoises,' from which this legend is taken, was recently published by Calmann Levy, Paris. In his history and manners, the book has endeavored to retain the important original character of the legends, while abridging the Chinese prolixities.

ought not to strive after riches, but neither ought he to remain, by preference, in poverty."

But this advice was not appreciated by Ma. The conversation that we have reported even threw a certain coolness between the two friends. Tao only went to see the other at long intervals, and at the request of Ma; shut up in his garden, he planted chrysanthemums, using for this purpose the dry stalks and imperfect situation rejected by his neighbor. At the blooming time Ma heard the noise of a continual coming and going past his house. Great throngs of people came to buy flowers of Tao; there was no cessation to the concourse during the whole day.

Ma, filled with indignation at the conduct of his friend, would have severed all connections with him, but the flowers sold were of rare species, and to him unknown; so that supposing that his friend had still other secrets, he went to him asking explanations. In going to the cottage he found that Tao's garden had not a bit of vacant ground; then he saw plainly that all these beautiful flowers proceeded from the pitiful debris that he himself had cast away so scornfully. Tao received his benefactor with graceful courtesy and invited him to dine in the midst of the garden.

On account of my lack of resources," said Tao, in order to conciliate his guest; "but, thanks to this new profession of florist, I have gained no small sum of money, and can now indulge myself, without concern, in the pleasure of drinking wine with you from time to time."

The dinner was elegant; the dishes, all most exquisite, had been prepared by the sister of the young horticulturist. At the dessert they spoke a little of everything, and among other matters, of the situation of the garden.

"Why is not Mlle. Tao married?" inquired Ma.

"Not yet; in 43 months she will be," And Tao would speak no further on this personal topic, and replied only by a gracious smile to the questions of his interlocutor.

The next day Ma came again to the cottage and was surprised to see flowers already a foot high which had been set out only the evening before. He expressed his desire to know the secret of this remarkable growth.

"It is impossible for me to tell you openly," was the reply; "and besides, what good would the knowledge do you—who you will not sell flowers?"

Some days afterward, when the season of chrysanthemums was past, Tao took leave of his friend and returned to his own country. He took great care to carry with him all the plants, and all the branches and roots, after having wrapped them in reed mats. He returned the next year, in the middle of spring-time, with the new plants of his country, to open a great flower-market. This commerce, which lasted only 10 days, brought a considerable fortune to Tao. A magnificent palace was soon erected in the old garden, and a field, purchased especially for the purpose, was devoted solely to the culture of chrysanthemums.

On his third voyage to the South, Tao left his sister to guard his domain; at the usual period he failed to appear.

A short time afterwards Ma had the letter from his sister, in which she told him that she was married. He felt very lonely in his house; he would have married Mlle. Tao, who was favorably disposed toward him, but the young lady wished to await the return of her brother, whom she regarded as her guardian and without whose consent she would not marry herself. But Tao returned. Meanwhile she continued in the flower business, which augmented her prosperity; little by little she acquired nearly all the fields about the city, and covered them with new flower-beds.

Suddenly she received a letter from her brother, telling her to marry Ma. The letter came from the South, and a singular circumstance, it was dated the very day of the death of Mlle. Tao; finally—a still more strange coincidence—it was exactly 43 months since the dinner where Ma had quizzed the young man, in the midst of the tall chrysanthemums, on the age of his sister.

From that time the marriage was decided upon; Mlle. Tao would have desired that the ceremony be celebrated in her house, but she yielded to the wishes of her future spouse, who would not leave his modest dwelling. But a door was opened from the country-house to the palace.

In order to make her husband share in her comfortable circumstances, Mme. Ma removed her furniture, little by little, to her new abode. But Ma sent back all the articles as fast as they were brought in, and recommended his wife to mix among the more movable of the two families,—he did not wish to see anything that proceeded from the flower-business.

Mme. Ma did not propose to submit to so unreasonable an order, and the fusion was soon complete. She even had Ma's house rebuilt to render it more worthy of her palace. The only concession she would make to the exigencies of her husband was to discontinue the sale of flowers. But her household retinue did not diminish; on the contrary, it outstripped those of the dignitaries of the city. Her husband saw only with regret found sorrow all these transformations, due to the sale of flowers—sacred in his eyes.

"My virtue of 30 years is ruined by you," said he one time, with shame; "attached to your skirts, I lose all the character and dignity of my word. I assure you that if I still desire one thing it is to become again poor."

"I am not ambitious," replied she; "that I have done has been with the object of elevating the renown of my race, in order that future generations may not have to say that we are destined to perpetual poverty. Moreover, it is not difficult to become poor again; here is my money,—spend all that you want to, and as you wish; I will ask no account of you."

"To spend another's money would still be a shame," I did not do that."

"You do not wish to be rich; for me, I by no means will become poor again. But since you are absolutely determined to place yourself in the position that pleases you in regard to fortune, we will separate."

After he had constructed for him a trellis arbor in the garden, and she herself remained in the northern house.

After a few days Ma could no longer endure the solitude, and he implored his wife to come and see him. She refused energetically, and the poor flower-lover was constrained to go to his wife's house, as he saw plainly that he could not live without her.

"Eat in one place and sleep in another!" said Mme. Ma, laughing; "is that the conduct of a virtuous man?"

As Ma knew not what reply to make, reconciliation was naturally effected, and the trellis was taken down.

Shortly after this incident Ma, led by chance to Nanking, met his brother-in-law, who had a great flower-store in that place. Ma invited him to return with him to Petchili; Tao objected, and M had to constrain him to sell his house in order to induce him to set out, so strong was the young man's love for his native country.

At their return Mme. Ma was found arranging the apartments designed for her brother, as if she knew in advance that he was to come. After that time the two brothers-in-law, rich, and untrammelled by any occupation, abandoned themselves entirely to the pleasure of drinking. They had there their friend than a person named Tsen, who was also an idolater of the fruits of the vine.

One evening Tao, intoxicated by too abundant libations, had a fall and became immediately transformed into an enormous chrysanthemum, bearing a dozen flowers as large as plates. His sister appeared at once, pulled him out of the soil—where he had already become rooted—covered him with his clothing and laid him down on the ground. The next day they found Tao asleep by the garden wall, in the same spot where he had been placed. Ma then understood that the brother and sister were metamorphosed chrysanthemums; but the esteem and affection he felt for them only augmented in consequence of his discovery.

After that Tao abandoned himself still more to drink, and each time he invited Tsen to come and drink with him. On the occasion of the feast of the flowers Tsen put some drug into a pitcher of wine which he then offered to the convives with the object of making them still more inebriated. Iward the end of the evening Tao having drunk moderately, was once more changed into a chrysanthemum. Ma was quite accustom to this transformation; so he laid the flower down as usual and remained by it in order to note the process of the metamorphosis. But this time the chrysanthemum suddenly and the plant appeared to be dying. Mme. Ma, hastily notified of the occurrence by her frightened husband, came running and weeping.

"They have killed by brother!" cried she.

She took up the plant, placed it in a flower-pot and watered it herself every day. The chrysanthemum regained life and strength; in the autumn its flowers exhaled a delicious perfume tinged with the scent of wine. Thenceforth people called this flower "Intoxicating Tao." Concerning Mme. Ma there was no further incident to record until her death.

He Took Her.

She was a maid of high degree, and quite severely proper. When she met, so proud was she, would love, despair, then drop her. But there remained without demer, when all the rest forsook her, an amateur photographer. And finally he took her.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith, Ark. Trial bottles of this wonderful discovery free, at Arthur Hudson's drugstore.

The Humiliated Man in Newion

A remedy that is sold entirely upon its merits, and is guaranteed to relieve and cure all chronic and acute coughs, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Large bottles, 50c, and $1.

The Engineer

A new idea embraced in Eli's Cream Balm. Catarrh is cured by cleansing and healing, not by drying up. It is not a liquid or snuff, but is easily applied into the nostrils. Its effect is to remove the cause of the trouble, and cure the worst cases. Price 50c.

For all Throat and Lung Diseases take Dr. James M. Silson, Jr.'s, Cough Cure. It has cured thousands. All druggists, 50 cents per bottle.

"Pearl-top" lamp-chimneys do not break in use; they are made of tough glass by Macbeth & Co., Pittsburgh. Your dealer probably has them; if not, he will thank you to make him acquainted with them.

Chimneys are mostly made of brittle glass, partly because it is cheap, and partly because it is brittle. Makers are apt to think the sooner things wear out or break the better for business. It may be for business; but not, we suspect, for their business.

For washing woolen goods and fine laces it is not surpassed. It will remove grease spots and paint from carpets, clothing and any kind of goods, cotton, silk or woolen. It will restore colors in silk, cotton or woolen goods. For washing floors, oil, cloth, marble, slate or tile, and cleaning paint it has no superior. For cleaning gold and silverware, and scouring brass and tin, it has no equal. It is a most excellent disinfectant.

Dumplings with Royal Baking Powder
No dessert is more delicious, wholesome and appetizing than a well-made dumpling, filled with the fruit of the season. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the crust is always rendered light, flaky, tender and digestible. Dumplings made with it, baked or boiled, will be found to be close over four times as much as those made with ordinary flour; after the butter is well mixed, stir in milk and knead to the consistency of soft biscuit dough; break in an egg, and then add one large potato, grated; mix thoroughly, and then add one quart of water, and lay in an earthen dish (or steamer) and steam ten minutes. Bake if preferred.
In all receipts calling for cream of tartar and soda, substitute Royal Baking Powder. Less trouble, never fails, makes more appetizing and wholesome food and is more economical. Royal Baking Powder is specially made for use in the preparation of the finest and most delicate cookery.
